Teaching Clinical Decision Making Randall D. Cebul, Laurence H. Beck, 1985-10-01 Aimed at teaching the principles and applications of clinical decision making to medical students this book focuses on the selection and interpretation of diagnostic tests introduces strategies for solving clinical problems and provides a structured approach to appraising the quality of evidence in the medical literature for the purpose of making clinical decisions Also covered are the rationale for and methods of evaluating courses in clinical decision making and the use of decision making concepts in daily teaching and clinical activities

Nurses' Clinical Decision Making Russell Gurbutt, 2018-12-13 This work includes a foreword by Carl Thompson Senior Research Fellow Department of Health Sciences University of York This inspiring text offers guidance and innovative ideas for teaching and learning It explains how nurses make clinical decisions through the development of narratives and how using narratives nurses gain a far more intimate knowledge of the patient than doctors can The book considers service delivery around patients renegotiation of professional roles of medical staff and their boundaries of responsibility and authority Nurses Clinical Decision Making will appeal to all undergraduate and postgraduate students of nursing registered nurses and nurse managers Nurse educators hospital managers doctors and healthcare risk managers will also find the information contained here invaluable If nurses are decision makers how can their role and practice be explained Can decision making be taught and are there different levels of decision making skill If so how can expert decision makers be recognised These are just some of the pertinent questions that need to be asked if we are to recognise and understand the centrality of clinical decision making in nursing practice Clinical work is complex and takes place in a complex environment that centres around individuals who themselves are physically socially and spiritually complex Clinical work also involves multiple participants nurses doctors patients physiotherapists occupational therapists pharmacists to name a few who in the course of a days work can make scores of decisions Russell Gurbutt in the Preface
