Technical Change And Social Conflict In Agriculture Latin American Perspectives:

Technical Change and Social Conflict in Agriculture Martin E Pineiro, Taylor & Francis Group, Eduardo J Trigo, 2021-02-19
Incorporating case studies of technological change in six Latin American countries this book presents the results of a large cooperative research project PROTAAL that has led to a new interpretation of the process of technical change in agricultural development. The contributors contrast the perspective emerging from PROTAAL with two other views of technical change in agriculture: the theory of induced innovation and the political economy approach. They then describe the methodology developed by PROTAAL which is highlighted in their analysis of the case studies. In the concluding chapters the authors address important issues concerning the organization of agricultural research activities at the national and international levels and consider theoretical and policy implications for the analysis of technical change in Latin American agriculture.

Knowledge Generation and Technical Change Steven Wolf, David Zilberman, 2012-12-06 Knowledge generation and transfer mechanisms are being transformed in important and controversial ways. Investment in research and development has increased in response to recognition that scientific productivity is tightly connected to economic dynamism. Patent protection has been expanded in order to stimulate higher levels of private investment. Intellectual property rights held by public organizations and researchers are now increasingly transferred to private organizations to accelerate the diffusion and enhance the value of knowledge produced by public agencies and universities. Additionally, new institutions such as university offices of technology transfer, venture capital markets, and a variety of consortia in knowledge-intensive industries are being established throughout the United States and in other parts of the world. These changes have led to a repositioning of the state in systems of innovation and an increase in the proprietary character of technical information. The purpose of this book is to review and analyze:
i) contemporary transitions in agricultural knowledge generation and extension arrangements from an empirical perspective and
ii) emerging and contradictory perspectives as to how knowledge systems can be assessed.

effectively The authors aim to provide the reader with a better understanding of the implications of new biotechnologies and new intellectual property rights regimes on public private relations in science the extent to which benefits from scientific knowledge are being appropriated by private sector actors the diversity and possible outcomes of privatization initiatives in extension and prospects for public goods production and ecological sustainability given contemporary trends The book presents contrasting views on the degree of complementarity and substitution between private and public sector investments in research and extension Recognizing that the labels public and private are incomplete and at times misleading descriptions of the structure and function of coordinating bodies in social systems the analyses highlight ways in which public and private spaces and modes of functioning combine In addition to illustrating a broad range of analytic methodologies useful for studying organizational questions in knowledge systems the authors identify the implications of a range of past and potential institutional innovations

Technological Change and the Environment Arnulf Grübler, 2010-09-30 Much is written in the popular literature about the current pace of technological change But do we have enough scientific knowledge about the sources and management of innovation to properly inform policymaking in technology dependent domains such as energy and the environment While it is agreed that technological change does not fall from heaven like autumn leaves the theory data and models are deficient The specific mechanisms that govern the rate and direction of inventive activity the drivers and scope for incremental improvements that occur during technology diffusion and the spillover effects that cross fertilize technological innovations remain poorly understood In a work that will interest serious readers of history policy and economics the editors and their distinguished contributors offer a unique single volume overview of the theoretical and empirical work on technological change Beginning with a survey of existing research they provide analysis and case studies in contexts such as medicine agriculture and power generation paying particular attention to what technological change means for efficiency productivity and reduced environmental impacts The book includes a historical analysis of technological change an examination of the overall direction of technological change and general theories about the sources of change The contributors empirically test hypotheses of induced innovation and theories of institutional innovation They propose ways to model induced technological change and evaluate its impact and they consider issues such as uncertainty in technology returns technology crossover effects and clustering A copublication of Resources for the Future RFF and the International Institute for Applied Systems Analysis IIASA

Technological Change and Social relations of Production: The Small Farmers of Pejibaye, Costa Rica , First the Seed Jack Ralph Kloppenburg, 1990-06-29 This history of the scientific and commercial lines of plant development in the United States traces the transformation of the seed from a public good produced and reproduced by farmers into a commodity controlled by businesses and corporations divorced from the uses of their product

Policy For Agricultural Research Vernon W Ruttan, Carl E Pray, Robert Evenson, Prabhu L

Pingali,2019-05-28 The contributors to this volume based on the Agriculture Research Seminars held annually at the University of Minnesota examine the role of government multinationals and the emerging private sector in both domestic and international contexts in determining agricultural research policy A Survey of Agricultural Economics Literature Lee R. Martin,1977 Non-Governmental Organizations and the State in Latin America Anthony Bebbington,Graham Thiele,2023-06-16 This presents twenty specially commissioned case studies of farmer participatory approaches to agricultural innovation initiated by NGOs in Latin America Beginning with a broad review of institutional activity at the grassroots the authors set the case material within the context of NGO relations with the State and their contribution to democratisation and the consolidation of rural civil society Specific questions are raised how good bad are NGOs at promoting technological innovation and addressing constraints to change in present agriculture how effective are NGOs at strengthening grassroots organizations and how do will donor pressures influence NGOs and their links to the State This title is part of a series on Non Governmental Organizations co ordinated by the Overseas Development Institute To complete this comprehensive review and critique there are two other regional case study volumes on Asia and Africa and an overview volume Reluctant Partners Latin America Juan Manuel Pérez,2004 This is a general bibliography on Latin America covering a wide variety of subjects from pre Columbian civilizations to Columbus to Castro to the foreign debt to pollution ect This work will not only be of use to the general casual reader on Latin America but also to the more specialized researcher The book contains over 800 topics with over 8 000 titles identified Motive Forces David Kaimowitz,International Service for National Agricultural Research,1992 Fuentes de Informacion Sobre Generacion y Transferencia de Tecnologia en America Latina y el Caribe , Forage Legumes Jayne T. MacLean,1986 Research, Realpolitik, And Development In Korea Larry Burmeister,2019-07-11 This book explores the politics of Korean developmental state and commitment of state agents to rapid industrialization within world political economy focusing the Korean green revolution It assesses how differences in state society relationships affect agricultural research system priorities An African Green Revolution Keijiro Otsuka,Donald F. Larson,2012-12-22 This volume explores the usefulness of the Asian model of agricultural development for Africa where even before the recent world food crisis half the population lived on less than on dollar a day and a staggering one in three people and one third of all children were undernourished Africa has abundant natural resources agriculture provides most of its jobs a third of national income and a larger portion of total export earnings However the levels of land and labor productivity rank among the worst in the world The book explains Africa s productivity gap and proposes ways to close it by examining recent experience in Africa and by drawing on lessons from Asia

Technological Innovation in Agriculture Alain De Janvry,Jean-Jacques Dethier,1985 This paper examines the role of market and nonmarket forces in affecting the rate and bias of technical change in agriculture It examines the process of generation of innovations and investment in agricultural research and explores in the context of political economy the sources of deviation from the equilibrium rate and bias of technical change It is argued that a theory of the rate and bias of technological innovation must go beyond the analysis of market forces because they explain only a fraction of changes in investment and productivity in agriculture It is further argued that the roles played by the various actors involved in agricultural research are being redefined as research moves in to the Post Green Revolution era New mechanisms of identification of research priorities of coordination of research programs and of participation of social groups affected by research need to be devised to increase efficiency and equity in the research effort
