Therapeutic Processes for Communication Disorders Robert J. Fourie, 2010-11-25 Why do many people with disorders of communication experience a sense of demoralization Do these subjective experiences have any bearing on how such problems should be treated How can professionals dealing with speech language hearing and other communication disorders analyse and respond to the subjective and relational needs of clients with such problems In this book authors in the fields of communication disorders analyse the psychological social and linguistic processes and interactions that underpin clinical practice from both client and clinician perspectives The chapters demonstrate how it is possible to analyze and understand client clinician discourse using qualitative research and describe various challenges to establishing relationships such as cultural gender and age differences The authors go on to describe self care processes the therapeutic use of the self and various psychological factors that could be important for developing therapeutic relationships Also covered are the rarely considered topics of spirituality and transpersonal issues which may at times be relevant to clinicians working with clients who have debilitating degenerative and terminal illnesses associated with certain communication disorders While this book is geared toward the needs of practicing and training speech language and hearing clinicians other professional such as teachers of the deaf psychotherapists nurses and occupational therapists will find the ideas relevant interesting and easily translatable for use in their own clinical practice Encyclopedia of Social Work, 1965

Evidence-Based Group Work in Community Settings David E. Pollio,Mark J. Macgowan,2013-09-13 There has been a strong recent trend towards incorporating evidence into Social Work practice in general and into group work in particular This trend has focused on the education of students in the use of evidence development of evidence based interventions and discussion of how evidence can be used to improve practice A limitation of most of this literature is that it has been written by researchers for the consumption of practitioners limiting the ability of evidence based practices to be incorporated into unique community settings and with specific populations In spite of this difficulty implementation of evidence based practices continues quietly in practice settings This book describes efforts to integrate evidence into community settings which have two foci The first part details group models developed through collaborations between researchers and community agencies Each chapter details efforts to implement research or review programs in community settings The second part deals with issues around instruction and dissemination of evidence based group work into practice settings The volume makes a significant contribution to the discussion about evidence based group work This book was published as a special issue of Social Work with Groups

Social Work and Service Learning Virginia Majewski,Meryl Nadel,Marilyn

Sullivan-Cosetti,2007-06-21 Service learning and social work education comprise an exciting yet underutilized partnership

This book represents the first comprehensive overview of this active and empowering approach to learning in social work Both educators and practitioners will discover conceptual and practical guidance for developing productive community based projects Often envisioned as located at the midpoint on a continuum from volunteer work to internship service learning combines the opportunity to serve with the opportunity to learn It offers community agencies a chance to collaborate with academic colleagues to meet identified community needs frequently with an explicit social justice dimension The contributors illustrate how service learning facilitates students understanding and interacting with community members as partners not clients Service learning encourages students to use critical thinking skills to reflect on their work and its implications This combination of study action reflection in conjunction with course content is highly effective The book explores its subject from several perspectives The first section serves as a conceptual and theoretical orientation to service learning in social work The second section offers models that illustrate many ways of implementing service learning across the components of the social work curriculum The final two parts of the book focus on evaluation and service learning in the broader context of civic engagement

Rights-based Integrated Child Protection Service Delivery Systems Murli Desai,2019-09-17 The Sourcebook IV provides training modules for rights based integrated child protection service delivery systems at the secondary and tertiary prevention levels Part 1 of the Sourcebook focuses on the preventative comprehensive integrated and systemic and universal community based and family based service delivery systems for children and the methods of case management and outcomes based project cycle Part 2 discusses children and families at risk and the role of community based Integrated Childcare and Support Centres for providing supplementary care and support services to them at the secondary prevention level It also focuses on children facing sociolegal problems such as deprivation of parental care violence and conflict with law and the role of District based Integrated Child Protection Centres for providing protection justice and rehabilitation to them at the tertiary prevention level Part 3 focuses on children in emergencies in general and in specific situations and role of Integrated Child Protection Centres in these situations This is a necessary read for social workers lawyers researchers trainers and teachers working on child rights across the world and especially in developing countries
