Teaching Mathematics to the New Standard Ruth M. Heaton, 2000-01-01 With refreshing candor Ruth Heaton an elementary mathematics educator with ten years of experience describes and traces her efforts to change her teaching practice in response to current national reforms in mathematics education Part of what makes this account so compelling is that Heaton explores her changing practice from the vantages of both teacher and researcher In the face of increased standards and state mandates Heaton does learn new ways to teach and the results of her experience are of great value to educators everywhere who face increasing challenges to their craft This autobiographical and academically rigorous book makes a much needed contribution to the literature on teaching and offers an insider's view of the nature and process of changing one's practice

Educational Research and Improvement, 2002* Writing to Make a Difference Chris Benson, Scott Christian, 2002 The student projects presented in this book demonstrate a powerful approach to teaching writing one that requires no special equipment or resources and can be adapted for students of any age The key is getting students involved in action research and in writing about issues that are important to them and their communities Written by public school teachers these chapters describe projects covering a variety of issues including avoiding teenage health risks preserving oral histories fighting racism investigating environmental hazards decreasing instances of teen pregnancy and much more Based on a process model of writing instruction these projects will show teachers how to engage their students while also teaching the basic skills that appear in educational standards and assessment frameworks Raising Race Questions Ali Michael, 2015 Conversations about race can be confusing contentious and frightening particularly for White people Even just asking questions about race can be scary because we are afraid of what our questions might reveal about our ignorance or bias Raising Race Questions invites teachers to use inquiry as a way to develop sustained engagement with challenging racial questions and to do so in community so that they learn how common their questions actually are It lays out both a process for getting to questions that lead to growth and change as well as a vision for where engagement with race questions might lead Race questions are not meant to lead us into a quagmire of guilt discomfort or isolation Sustained race inquiry is meant to lead to anti racist classrooms positive racial identities and a restoration of the wholeness of spirit and community that racism undermines Book Features Case studies of expert and experienced White teachers who still have questions about race Approaches for talking about race in the K 12 classroom Strategies for facilitating race conversations among adults A variety of different resources useful in the teacher inquiry groups described in the book Research with teachers not on teachers including written responses from each teacher whose classroom is featured in the book In Raising Race Questions Ali Michael is an excavator determined to dig into every unexplored crevice of White teachers' experiences with race in order to unearth the complex realities of racism and schooling and a model of reflective inquiry willing to lay herself and her assumptions bare in service to the reader's consciousness and her own. This book grew my consciousness in multiple ways and that is the greatest gift an author can give me. Paul Gorski, founder EdChange, associate professor, George Mason University. Ali Michael has a gift for getting people talking. This must-read book captures her magic and shares useful strategies for teachers and schools working to develop their racial proficiency. As a White teacher engaged in this work, I've watched these tools help educators support one another as they make mistakes, reflect, and grow together. Lynn Eckerman, Teacher Independence Charter School, Philadelphia, PA.

Science Teachers' Learning, National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine, Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Teacher Advisory Council, Board on Science Education, Committee on Strengthening Science Education through a Teacher Learning Continuum, 2016-01-15. Currently, many states are adopting the Next Generation Science Standards (NGSS) or are revising their own state standards in ways that reflect the NGSS. For students and schools, the implementation of any science standards rests with teachers. For those teachers, an evolving understanding about how best to teach science represents a significant transition in the way science is currently taught in most classrooms, and it will require most science teachers to change how they teach. That change will require learning opportunities for teachers that reinforce and expand their knowledge of the major ideas and concepts in science, their familiarity with a range of instructional strategies, and the skills to implement those strategies in the classroom. Providing these kinds of learning opportunities in turn will require profound changes to current approaches to supporting teachers' learning across their careers, from their initial training to continuing professional development. A teacher's capability to improve students' scientific understanding is heavily influenced by the school and district in which they work, the community in which the school is located, and the larger professional communities to which they belong. Science Teachers Learning provides guidance for schools and districts on how best to support teachers' learning and how to implement successful programs for professional development. This report makes actionable recommendations for science teachers' learning that take a broad view of what is known about science education, how and when teachers learn, and education policies that directly and indirectly shape what teachers are able to learn and teach. The challenge of developing the expertise teachers need to implement the NGSS presents an opportunity to rethink professional learning for science teachers. Science Teachers Learning will be a valuable resource for classrooms, departments, schools, districts, and professional organizations as they move to new ways to teach science.

ENC Focus, 2001. Redesigning Professional Education Doctorates, Valerie A. Storey, 2013-12-11. This volume demonstrates that Critical Friendship Theory can help distinguish education doctorate (EdD) programs from research doctorates (education PhDs). Drawing on multiple detailed case studies of CFT implementation at universities, it covers curriculum and implementation, online and in-person education challenges, and strategies for success.

Crossroads of the Classroom, Vicki Ross, Elaine Chan, Dixie K. Keyes, 2017-04-28. This book aims

Linguistics and Cross-Disciplinary Action Research Joanna Baumgart,2021-11-29 In this book Joanna Baumgart offers a detailed and innovative account of how a mixed methods approach combining corpus linguistics and discourse analysis can shed light on educational practice Corpus Linguistics and Cross Disciplinary Action Research is based on a 22 000 word corpus of mathematics lessons in a multicultural secondary school in Ireland with the analysis of classroom data supported by insights from reflective meetings with the participating teacher It demonstrates how examination of video recordings of lessons and reflective conversations facilitate discursive changes in the classroom and increase teacher awareness of classroom interaction Throughout the role of teacher talk is used as a model in the subject specific discourse into which students are socialized Baumgart also relates the story of a successful interdisciplinary approach to action research thereby providing an example of how talk and interaction can be examined within wider educational contexts Building on the premise of the key role which language and talk in particular plays in teaching and learning processes this book will be of keen interest to teacher educators as well as researchers in the fields of corpus linguistics discourse analysis and educational linguistics Action, Talk, and Text Gordon Wells,2001 This book draws from six years work by the Developing Inquiring

Communities in Education Project DICEP to provide a range of practical replicable methods for building collaborative communities in which democratic principles of education may be realized Recognizing that each classroom is unique in its makeup its context and its history these seasoned teacher researchers rely heavily on discourse both spoken and written to engage students in the active learning process Their findings are striking and clear and testify to the exciting potential that dialogic interaction and collaborative knowledge building have for the field of education Key features of this book are identification of appropriate research questions real life teaching strategies based on extensive hands on experience in the field and workable suggestions for facilitating inquiry based learning and teaching Rural Voices Robert Brooke,2003

Because of the Kids Jennifer E. Obidah, Karen Manheim Teel, 2001-01-01 This book details the story of two teacher researchers Jennifer who is African American and Karen who is White as they set out on a collaborative three year study to explore the impact of racial and cultural differences in Karen s urban middle school classroom They describe how they learn to confront and deal with the challenges they face so that they can work together Their study presents the difficulties and importance of collaborations between teachers from different racial and cultural backgrounds as well as insights on how race and culture evolve in teacher student interactions      Inquiry as Stance Marilyn Cochran-Smith, Susan L. Lytle, 2015-04-25 In this long awaited sequel to Inside Outside Teacher Research and Knowledge two leaders in the field of practitioner research offer a radically different view of the relationship of knowledge and practice and of the role of practitioners in educational change In their new book the authors put forward the notion of inquiry as stance as a challenge to the current arrangements and outcomes of schools and other educational contexts They call for practitioner researchers in local settings across the United States and around the world to ally their work with others as part of larger social and intellectual movements for social change and social justice Part I is a set of five essays that conceptualize inquiry as a stance and as a transformative theory of action that repositions the collective intellectual capacity of practitioners Part II is a set of eight chapters written by eight differently positioned practitioners who are or were engaged in practitioner research in K 12 schools or teacher education Part III offers a unique format for exploring inquiry as stance in the next generation a readers theatre script that juxtaposes and co mingles 20 practitioners voices in a performance oriented format Together the three parts of the book point to rich possibilities for practitioner inquiry in the next generation Contributors Rebecca Akin Gerald Campano Delvin Dinkins Kelly A Harper Gillian Maimon Gary McPhail Swati Mehta Rob Simon and Diane Waff Cochran Smith and Lytle once again prove themselves to be among the best at melding theory and practice. Instead of merely making the case for practitioner inquiry, they go the next step to show us exactly what this genre brings to our field: rigor, relevance, and passion. The interplay of conceptual clarity and powerful exemplars make this a text we will read well into the next decade. Gloria Ladson Billings, University of Wisconsin-Madison. Once again, Marilyn Cochran-Smith and Susan Lytle point the way to new and hopeful understandings of practitioner research. Rather than blame teachers for all that is wrong with education, they and their fellow authors remind us that if school reform is to have any chance of fulfilling its stated goal of equal opportunity for all students, teachers must have a significant voice in research policy and practice. With its focus on social justice and its view of practitioner research as transformative, this is a powerful and welcome sequel to their classic Inside/Outside. Sonia Nieto, Professor Emerita, University of Massachusetts-Amherst. Inquiry as Stance should be a blockbuster. This brilliant sequel recalibrates relationships between practitioner inquiry and social justice. Carole Edelsky, Professor Emerita, Arizona State University. This optimistic and generous book is sure to become a central reference for teacher researchers in K-16 schools and their colleagues and supporters throughout the system. Elyse Eidman-Aadahl, Director, National Programs and Site Development, National Writing Project, University of California-Berkeley. This view of the intellectual and personal work of teaching is a major counter to the contemporary emphasis on testing and packaged curricula. Cynthia Ballenger, reading specialist, Cambridge Public Schools. Once again, Cochran-Smith, Lytle, and their colleagues bring us an invaluable book on the enormous possibilities of practitioner research. Luis C. Moll, College of Education, University of Arizona.

Impactful Practitioner Inquiry Sue Nichols, Phil Cormack, 2017. How does practitioner inquiry impact education? Examining the experiences of practitioners who have participated in inquiry projects, the authors present ways in which this work has enabled educators to be positive change agents. They reveal the difference that practitioner inquiry has made in their professional practice, their understanding of student learning, their content area knowledge, and their career trajectories. Attesting to long-lasting changes in ways that these educators approach professional challenges, the authors identify the ripple effect of these changes through school communities and beyond. Impactful Practitioner Inquiry includes in-depth case studies as well as chapters specifically focused on the design and analysis aspects of inquiry. Book Features: An examination of how practitioner inquiry impacts professional practice, school culture, and career trajectories. The use of complexity and network theories to understand how practitioner inquiry is able to create its ripple effect. Testimonies from educators with up to 10 years' experience as inquirers. Practices from early childhood and school settings, classroom and leadership roles, general education and specialist settings. This in-depth reflective analysis will be invaluable to action researchers and school-university collaborations in designing inquiries that positively impact student lives and learning. JoBeth Allen, professor emerita, University of Georgia. Incorporating extended examples, helpful frameworks, and critical analysis, this will be a must-have book for teacher researchers and educational professional learning communities internationally. Barbara Comber.
