Team Building Issues And Alternatives:

Team Building William G. Dyer, 1977 Team Building William G. Dyer, 1995 One of the major developments in the field of organization redesign has been the emergence of self directed work teams Team Building explains how teams are most successful when the team becomes part of the culture and structure or systems of the organization Team building is a human process that involves human feelings attitudes and actions This book is written for managers and human resource professionals who want to develop a more systematic program of team building in their organization or work unit William G Dyer has laid the groundwork for all subsequent books in the field of team building The first edition of this book was the pioneer text on team building this third edition brings the whole field of team building up to date The book discusses the major new trends including self directed work teams total quality initiatives and cross cultural teams and reviews the strengths and weaknesses of these new developments in team building Throughout the book Dr Dyer emphasizes the degree of commitment that managers and members of work teams must bring to the team building process For team building to succeed managers must adopt a true team philosophy take responsibility for team building work and become involved on a personal level Key executives also must become involved by ensuring that the organization's culture and especially its review and reward systems support the goal of team building

Team Performance in Health Care Gloria D. Heinemann, Antonette M. Zeiss, 2012-12-06 The idea of teamwork in health care emerged at several times during the 20th century as the result of shifts in the nature and demands of health care and societal needs Examples include medical and surgical teams serving the military in World War II primary care teams staffing Community Health Centers created by President Johnson's War On Poverty and geriatric care teams established to serve the rapidly growing number of aging citizens Collaborative teamwork surfaced as a rational solution to health care needs but political and economic consensus to support widespread implementation was lacking The increasing complexity of providing health care seemed best served by the skills and efforts of interdisciplinary teams but such care was viewed as expensive so evaluation of its effectiveness became essential There were major problems in conducting such evaluation however First no clear theory guided the concept and practice of teamwork Early attempts to employ theoretical constructs explaining the behavioral and organizational phenomena of teamwork borrowed from theories of group dynamics communication organizational development and general systems Further few reliable validated instruments existed to evaluate team process function or effectiveness The best early efforts at research and evaluation came from academic centers funded by the Office of Interdisciplinary Programs of the Bureau of Health Professions 1975-78 and from the Veterans Affairs Interprofessional Team Training Development Program
