many contemporaries in our time the popularity of studying complexity is fast becoming a new fad in the intellectual scene However can the study of complex phenomena truly reveal recognizable patterns with predictable outcomes to enhance our understanding of reality especially when it is embedded within the messy web of complexity If so what then are the limits This book strives to demolish some of the myths surrounding the nature of complexity and in the process to provide an original theory to understand it in this world and beyond It introduces the author's dialectic theory of complexity together with the theoretical debate in the literature It expounds on the concept of complexity from various perspectives including chemistry micro and macro physics biology and psychology It also examines the nature of complexity from societal and cultural perspectives This book presents a broad view on the nature of complexity adequately introducing the reader to this emerging field Quarterly Index to Periodical Literature, Eastern and Southern Africa, 1994 ICBBEM 2023

Senkaku Diaoyu islands are only a part of a long history of both conflict and cooperation in maritime relations between Japan and China James Manicom examines the cooperative history between China and Japan at sea and explains the conditions under which two rivals can manage disputes over issues such as territory often correlated with war China and Japan appear incapable of putting history behind them are poised on the brink of a strategic rivalry and seem at risk of falling into an unintentional war over disputed maritime claims Bridging Troubled Waters challenges this view by offering a case by case analysis of how China and Japan have managed maritime tensions since the dispute erupted in 1970 The author advances an approach that offers a trade off between the most important stakes in the disputed maritime area with a view to establishing a stable maritime order in the East China Sea The book will be of interest to policymakers academics and regional specialists in Asia security studies and international conflict and cooperation
