Social Interaction In Learning And Instruction:

Classroom Interaction and Social Learning Kristiina Kumpulainen, David Wray, 2002 Today's classroom presents a wealth of opportunities for social interaction amongst pupils leading to increased interest in teachers and researchers into the social nature of learning While classroom interaction can be a valuable tool for learning it does not necessarily lead to useful learning experiences Through case studies this book highlights the use of new analytical methodologies for studying the content and patterns of children's interactions and how these contribute to their construction of knowledge Classroom Interaction and Social Learning will be of interest to students and in service teachers and researchers concerned with classroom discourse and learning

Social Interaction in Learning and Instruction Helen Cowie, Geerdina Van der Aalsvoort, 2000-01 Hardbound This exciting new text examines how knowledge is socially constructed and shared through discursive interactions within the classroom community The contributors discuss the meaning of the cognitive emotional and social discourses that exist between teachers and learners and suggest how teachers can create an effective learning partnership to stimulate children The authors also consider how children in turn construe the curriculum and how they perceive the ground rules and peer relationships within the classroom community By reporting findings from state of the art studies in a range of Western cultural contexts the authors are able to overview key theoretical perspectives and synthesise the methods currently being developed for measuring social interaction in learning and instruction

Learning, Social Interaction and Diversity - Exploring Identities in School Practices Eva Hjörne, Geerdina van der Aalsvoort, Guida de Abreu, 2012-09-05 The main idea of the book is to contribute to a broader understanding of learning identity and diversity by presenting actual research findings that were retrieved from classroom settings and related social practices Learning is to a large extent an ongoing social process as both students and their teachers learn by being part of shared social practices through social interactions that facilitate learning gains Sociocultural research shows that the organization of schooling promotes or restricts learning and is a crucial factor to understand how children from a diversity of backgrounds profit from instruction This is a first urgent issue to be considered by teachers and teacher education in our socio and culturally diverse society A second issue is the on going debate about learning as a process that involves the construction of identities in schools and classrooms and in the transitions between school and home practices Last but not least since school practices can be addressed from the perspective of diversity and special educational needs an on going discussion about optimizing pedagogical approaches is of main importance to allow maximum educational effectiveness Our potential audience for this book are researchers post graduate students in education and psychology teachers teacher education other academics and policy makers

Open Spaces for Interactions and Learning Diversities Alessio Surian, 2016-07-08 While changes related to cultural diversity are visible and at work in social cultural and political contexts cultural diversity as such is being ignored or rejected across many countries It is the denial or hidden nature of diversity in educational settings and learning processes reflected in the marginalisation of this topic that this book wants to address The book chapters are blind peer reviewed and draw from a variety of learning settings across the world They are intended to open up spaces to talk promote and struggle for the relevance of addressing learning diversities This includes current and new directions for theoretical and methodological discussions They concern spaces of interaction and diversity research across single and multiple moments different contexts and various time scales They also explore the diversity of theories used to address these issues and how we theorize the relationship between centres and margins in understanding the idea of opening spaces for dialogue

Classroom Interactions and Social Learning Kristiina Kumpulainen, David Wray, 2003-12-16 Today's classroom presents a wealth of opportunities for social interaction amongst pupils leading to increased interest in teachers and researchers into the social nature of learning While classroom interaction can be a valuable tool for learning it does not necessarily lead to useful learning experiences Through case studies this book highlights the use of new analytical methodologies for studying the content and patterns of children's interactions and how these contribute to their construction of knowledge Classroom Interaction and Social Learning will be of interest to students and in service teachers and researchers concerned with classroom discourse and learning

Theories of Learning and Studies of Instructional Practice

Timothy Koschmann, 2011-04-19 This is a book about an attempt to change the way math was taught in a particular classroom Its title plays on our everyday usage of the terms theory and practice In education these terms are conventionally treated oppositionally we have theories about what we should do and we have what teachers actually do do In this way theory stands prior logically and chronologically to practice practice inevitably becoming theory s imperfect realization We seek in this volume however to develop a different stance with regard to the relationship between the two Taking the details of instructional practice as our principle object of study we explore what role theories of learning might play in illuminating such practices The book is about actual practices by which teaching is done and how contemporary theories of learning might help us understand those practices It seeks to provide a foundation for future practice based inquiry in education by addressing the methodological question How do we go about studying instructional practice in a principled way

extension programs Prossy Isubikalu,2023-08-28 The Farmer Field School FFS originated in the 1980s in the context of integrated pest management in Indonesian rice farming With the hope that it is the remedy for agricultural extension system FFS has been promoted as a tool for participatory learning and experimentation all over the world This work results from a critical analysis of the introduction of the FFS concept into the agricultural innovation system in Uganda Ideally an FFS produces new technical knowledge in the context of application through the input of local human resources The analysis framed as a technography shows that implementation and operation of an FFS is hugely complex This detailed study of institutional factors from the level of international donor organizations down to the level of local leadership and gender relations and analysis of technical factors in different rural areas of Uganda makes clear that and FFS is more than a local tool for farmer participation in agricultural improvement Implementation of a FFS requires adjustment of the agricultural innovation system at all levels and an integrated tackling of agricultural problems in order to meet its objectives Isubikalu shows that it is imperative to demolish existing organizational structures and create new ones which align scientific with local structures to produce an appropriate people centered system that is more responsive to agricultural and rural development She provides stepping stones in redesigning FFS to fit the specific conditions in Uganda Dialogic Learning Jos van den Linden, Peter Renshaw, 2006-01-12 Contemporary researchers have analysed dialogue primarily in terms of instruction conversation or inquiry There is an irreducible tension when the terms dialogue and instruction are brought together because the former implies an emergent process of give and take whereas the latter implies a sequence of predetermined moves It is argued that effective teachers have learned how to perform in this contradictory space to both follow and lead to be both responsive and directive to require both independence and receptiveness from learners Instructional dialogue therefore is an artful performance rather than a prescribed technique Dialogues also may be structured as conversations which function to build consensus conformity to everyday ritualistic practices and a sense of community The dark side of the dialogic we and the community formed around our and us is the inevitable boundary that excludes them and theirs When dialogues are structured to build consensus and community critical reflection on the bases of that consensus is required and vigilance to ensure that difference and diversity are not being excluded or assimilated see Renshaw 2002 Again it is argued that there is an irreducible tension here because understanding and appreciating diversity can be achieved only through engagement and living together in communities Teachers who work to create such communities in their classrooms need to balance the need for common practices with the space to be different resistant or challenging again an artful performance that is difficult to articulate in terms of specific teaching techniques Discourse and language learning across L2 instructional settings, 2012-01-01 Studies on discourse and language learning originated in the field of general education and they focused on first language learning environments However since 1980s research on discourse and language learning broadened the scope of investigation to respond to second and foreign language environments Recently the emergence of new language learning contexts such as computer mediated communication multilingual settings or content and language integrated contexts requires further research that focuses on discourse and language learning From this perspective the present volume aims to broaden the scope of investigation in foreign language contexts by exploring discourse patterns in the classroom and examining the impact of factors such as gender explicitness of feedback or L1 use on language learning through discourse With that aim in mind this volume will bring together research that investigates discourse in various instructional settings namely those of primary secondary and university L2 learning environments content and language integrated contexts and other new language learning settings The number and variety of languages involved both as the first language e g English Finnish Basque Spanish Japanese French Italian Catalan as well as the target foreign language e g English French Italian Japanese Spanish makes the volume specially attractive Additionally the different approaches adopted by the researchers participating in this volume such as information processing sociocultural theory or conversation analysis widen the realm of investigation on discourse and language learning Finally the strength of the volume also lies in the range of educational settings primary secondary and tertiary education and the worldwide representation of contributors across seven different countries namely those of Spain France Austria Finland Germany Canada Australia and the United States The uniqueness of the volume is due to its eclectic and comprehensive nature in tackling instructional discourse Worldwide outstanding researchers like Julianne House Carme Muñoz Ute Smit Tarja Nikula or Roy Lyster to quote but a few adopt different perspectives in this joint contribution that will certainly broaden the scope of research on language learners discourse
