Religion in Film John R. May, Michael S. Bird, 1982 This carefully edited collection of essays explores in greater diversity and depth than has been attempted before the relationship between film and religion Combining perspectives from traditional film criticism and from religious studies Religion in Film asserts that it is no longer possible to view films simply in terms of their moral impact nor is it reasonable to limit religious meaning only to those films that make an explicit appeal to religious elements The essays offer a variety of theoretical reflections on the religious interpretation of film explore particular cinematic variations on the archetypal images of savior and demon analyze significant cultural trends of a religious nature related to film and assess thirteen sensibilities Altman Bergman Bunuel Chaplin Coppola Fellini Hitchcock Jutra Kubrick Peckinpah Russell Truffaut and Wertmüller The contributors provide a firm basis for analysis while respecting a variety in interpretation As the overall structure of the book leads from the universal to the particular from theory to individual directors and films so its concern with religious interpretation flows naturally from the universally religious to particular religious worldviews Among world religions Christianity claims attention in proportion to its dominant cultural influence in the West where film has more obviously flourished The insights and interpretations presented in these essays will be of importance to cinema scholars film critics and students of religion and of interest to film buffs particularly those who are sensible of the religious dimension of films

New Image of Religious Film John R. May, 1997 Contributors from richly diverse backgrounds explore a wide range of current issues concerning the interrelationship of religion and film
