Bradshaw,Edward A. Dennis,2011-04-12 Cell signaling which is also often referred to as signal transduction or in more specialized cases transmembrane signaling is the process by which cells communicate with their environment and respond temporally to external cues that they sense there All cells have the capacity to achieve this to some degree albeit with a wide variation in purpose mechanism and response At the same time there is a remarkable degree of similarity over quite a range of species particularly in the eukaryotic kingdom and comparative physiology has been a useful tool in the development of this field The central importance of this general phenomenon sensing of external stimuli by cells has been appreciated for a long time but it has truly become a dominant part of cell and molecular biology research in the past three decades in part because a description of the dynamic responses of cells to external stimuli is in essence a description of the life process itself This approach lies at the core of the developing fields of proteomics and metabolomics and its importance to human and animal health is already plainly evident Provided by publisher Molecular Biology Abraham Marcus,1989-01-01 The Biochemistry of Plants Volume 15 Molecular Biology presents information pertinent to gene expression cytoskeletal proteins and hydroxyproline rich glycoprotein This book discusses the specific gene systems and examines the regulatory regions within the genes Organized into 17 chapters this volume starts with an overview of the important mechanism for regulating gene expression which is significant in the selective turnover of gene products This book then proceeds with a discussion of the concept of protein degradation and the extracellular carriers of genetic information Other chapters review the viral and plasmid systems which are relevant to plants This text discusses as well the phenotypic changes in plants including plant genetic tumor and habituated plant tissues that exhibit hormone autotrophic growth The final chapter examines the importance of genetic manipulation at the cellular level via protoplast fusion cell selection and transformation Biologists biochemists enzymologists biophysicists and plant scientists will find this book extremely useful
