MISSION: The Texas Water Development Board's (TWDB) mission is to provide leadership, planning, financial assistance, education, and education for the conservation and responsible development of water for Texas.

Texas Water Development Board

In response to the drought of the 1950s and in recognition of the need to plan for the future, the legislature created the Texas Water Development Board (TWDB) to develop water supplies and manage plans to meet the state's future water needs. In 1961, the legislature established a new water planning process, based on a "bottom-up," consensus-driven approach. Distributing this water planning process into 10 planning groups, one for each regional water planning area (see map). The planning groups, each made up of about 30 members, represent a variety of interests, including agriculture, industry, environment, public, municipalities, business, water districts, rural authorities, water utilities, counties, and power generation.
