

The principal characteristics of the New Age philosophy

- Deism saw God as the cause of the great mechanism of the world, a view more in harmony with science than with traditional religion.
- According to Mechanism the universe is completely explicable in terms of mechanical processes. Inasmuch as these mechanical processes are best understood in their movements, mechanism frequently involves the attempt to demonstrate that the universe is nothing more than a vast system of motions.
- Empiricism, in philosophy, a doctrine that affirms that all knowledge is based on experience, and denies the possibility of spontaneous ideas or a priori thought.
