Index of Specifications and Standards, 2005 The Analysis of Categorical Data Using GLIM James K. Lindsey, 2012-12-06 The present text is the result of teaching a third year statistical course to undergraduate social science students Besides their previous statistics courses these students have had an introductory course in computer programming FORTRAN Pascal or C and courses in calculus and linear algebra so that they may not be typical students of sociology This course on the analysis of contingency tables has been given with all students in front of computer terminals and more recently micro computers working interactively with GLIM Given the importance of the analysis of categorical data using log linear models within the overall body of models known as general linear models GLMs treated by GLIM this book should be of interest to anyone in any field concerned with such applications It should be suitable as a manual for applied statistics courses covering this subject I assume that the reader has already a reasonably strong foundation in statistics and specifically in dealing with the log linear/logistic models I also assume that he or of GLIM itself In she has access to the GLIM manual and to an operational version other words this book does not pretend to present either a complete introduction to the use of GLIM or an exposition of the statistical properties of log linear/logistic models For the former I would recommend Healy 1988 and Aitkin et al 1989 For the latter many books already exist of which I would especially recommend that of Pingleton 1984 in the present context AlveoConsistograph Handbook Michel Dubois, Arnaud Dubat, Bernard Launay, 2016-07-21 The AlveoConsistograph helps you to classify control and select wheat and flour and to optimize their blending for specific rheological properties It measures the effects of improvers ingredients and other additives resulting in better control of dough on the production line and more consistent end product quality The AlveoConsistograph Handbook

Second Edition provides an understanding of the technical data generated by the instrument and gives timely application examples. It explains the workings of the Chopin Consistograph and provides deep insight into its coupling with the Chopin Alveograph. As the first revision of this resource in 20 years, this new edition explains major modifications and improvements of the alveograph through new and completely revised chapters. A new chapter on the Consistograph, the component used to determine the water absorption capacity of flour, includes test procedures, applications, differences from other devices, maintenance, and troubleshooting. Another new chapter discusses the debate surrounding the testing of samples using either constant water content or constant consistency methods. This chapter gives useful insight into the adapted hydrated alveograph protocol and its benefits for users of flour that will be part of formulations when gluten quality and performance is crucial. It covers the controversial subject in depth along with the technical basis for the development of the debate and compares the uses of both methods on the same wheat. In addition to wheat flour, the book provides guidance for using the alveograph on additional products such as durum wheat semolina and durum pasta. All the chapters have been rewritten to include the latest practices and will help users gain a better understanding of how this important technology is used in today's food labs. This large-format, easy-to-read handbook includes two helpful appendixes. The first lists the main parts of the alveograph, and the second lists selected references concerning the alveograph. The AlveoConsistograph Handbook will provide users all along the cereal chain with up-to-date information that helps them to get the most out of their daily use of this important technology. The book will be especially useful for food scientists in the baking industry, quality control laboratories, suppliers of enzymes and additives, breeders, grain scientists involved with grain storage, and grain exporters.
