The Nature And Dignity Of Love:

The Nature and Dignity of Love William (of Saint-Thierry, Abbot of Saint-Thierry),1981 The Nature and Dignity of Love William of St. Thierry,1981-01-01 On the Nature and Dignity of Love William Saint Thierry,2013-10-19 WILLIAM OF SAINT THIERRY the little known but very great contemporary and friend of Saint Bernard wrote his treatise On the nature and dignity of love a little after his first work On contemplating God He was at the time abbot of the Benedictine monastery of Saint Thierry near Rheims but one already notices how heavy he found the abbatial charge Eventually he found it impossible to carry on any longer and in 1135 he resigned his office and took the Cistercian habit in the new foundation at Signy Most of William's work was produced when he was abbot of Saint Thierry and his treatise On the nature and dignity of love might conceivably be based on sermons delivered at the morning chapter to his monks at Saint Thierry As Saint Aelred took Cicero's doctrine as the basis for his work on spiritual friendship so the author of The nature and dignity of love took Ovid's Art of Loving as the starting point of his work But whereas Aelred developed Cicero's thought in a Christian context William used Ovid only in order to contradict his all too popular doctrine of profane love as he says quite clearly in his first chapter by unruly rules he Ovid instructed the natural faculties in licentiousness instead of turning towards God in the due order of nature men were brought low by the allurements of the flesh One can legitimately suppose that William found many of the novices as saturated with Ovid as he found them in later years at Signy reeking with the errors of Abelard William visualized the monastery as a school of love In chapter nine we read that the monastery is charity's own school Here the study of love is pursued Here love's disputations are held and love's questions answered But it is important to note how in the same chapter William traces the descent of the monastic community from that fellowship of the Holy Spirit which the Apostles were the first to enjoy On the nature and dignity of love is not just a monastic idyll but a passage which most interest every Christian for all are bound to seek after the perfection of love The Nature and Dignity of Love William Saint Thierry,2016-10-27 The will grows into love love becomes charity and charity develops into wisdom This is one of many gems in this book The love which we owe God is fourfold and entire In that He says He will be loved with all thy heart He demands our will Will all thy strength implies the virtue of charity and with all thy mind means the enjoyment of wisdom It is the will itself which first moves the soul towards God and love carries it onward Charity contemplates Him and wisdom enjoys Him On the Nature and Dignity of Love William (of Saint-Thierry, Abbot of Saint-Thierry),1956 Promised Bodies Patricia Dailey,2013-08-27 In the Christian tradition especially in the works of Paul Augustine and the exegetes of the Middle Ages the body is a twofold entity consisting of inner and outer persons that promises to find its true materiality in a time to come A potentially transformative vehicle it is a dynamic mirror that can reflect the work of the divine within and substantially alter its own materiality if receptive to divine grace The writings of Hadewijch of Brabant a thirteenth century beguine engage with this tradition in sophisticated ways both singular to her mysticism and indicative of the theological milieu of the twelfth and thirteenth centuries Crossing linguistic and historical boundaries Patricia Dailey connects the embodied poetics of Hadewijch's visions writings and letters to the work of Julian of Norwich Hildegard of Bingen Marguerite of Oingt and other mystics and visionaries She establishes new criteria to more consistently understand and assess the singularity of women's mystical texts and by underscoring the similarities between men's and women's writings of the time collapses traditional conceptions of gender as they relate to differences in style language interpretative practices forms of literacy and uses of textuality

Five Things Theologians Wish Biblical Scholars Knew Hans Boersma, 2021-09-07 The relationship between theology and biblical studies is often marked by misunderstandings methodological differences and cross discipline tension With an irenic spirit as well as honesty about differences that remain theologian Hans Boersma highlights five things he wishes biblical scholars knew about theology so that these disciplines might once again serve the church hand in hand
