

"They turned it into a desert and called it peace."

—Tacitus, describing the Roman Empire.

Analyzing the NATO bombing, Noam Chomsky challenges the New Humanism: Is it guided by power interests, or by humanitarian concern? Is the resort to force undertaken in the name of principles and values? Or are we witnessing something more grim and familiar?

With a powerful grasp of history—and an incisive argument about its relevance in this "new era"—Chomsky peels back historical claims that the United States and its allies fight for a world where those responsible for ethnic cleansing have nowhere to hide.

The New Military Humanism reveals instead a world where victims of human rights violations are either worthy or unworthy. In the case of Turkey, its Kurdish victims of ethnic cleansing are so unworthy that we sell arms to our paying ally to help it accomplish the task. Meanwhile, Serbia, a disorderly miscreant impeding the institution of the U.S.-dominated global system, is the target of impassioned arguments — and bombs — that the UN Declaration on Human Rights must be enforced.

Chomsky seeks to overcome what George Orwell called a sinister, largely voluntary form of literary censorship by the well-educated with the "general tacit agreement that 'it wouldn't do' to mention that particular fact."

With his uniquely powerful style, Chomsky reviews the many facts that just won't do. From administrative knowledge that bombing would escalate Serb atrocities, to the opportunities for diplomacy passed over in favor of war, the facts are so numerous as to warrant a chapter on the "Minsk syndrome": an affliction necessary to hold the official version of reality in place.

"A persuasively argued critique...of NATO's disastrous Kosovo action. [It] reveals...deliberately bad logic, catastrophically infamous results, and frightening power allied with both violence and catatony...a rare and responsible citizen should avoid confronting. Indispensable."

—Edward W. Said

"A brilliant dissection of the US/NATO evasion of diplomacy...An eye-opener and essential work."

—Edward S. Herman

Challenges for Humanitarian Intervention C. A. J. Coady, Ned Dobos, Sagar Sanyal, 2018-05-10 Ten new essays critique the practice armed humanitarian intervention and the Responsibility to Protect doctrine that advocates its use under certain circumstances The contributors investigate the causes and consequences as well as the uses and abuses of armed humanitarian intervention One enduring concern is that such interventions are liable to be employed as a foreign policy instrument by powerful states pursuing geo political interests Some of the chapters interrogate how the presence of ulterior motives impact on the moral credentials of armed humanitarian intervention Others shine a light on the potential adverse effects of such interventions even where they are motivated primarily by humanitarian concern The volume also tracks the evolution of the R2P norm and draws attention to how it has evolved for better or for worse since UN member states unanimously accepted it over a decade ago In some respects the norm has been distorted to yield prescriptions and to impose constraints fundamentally at odds with the spirit of the R2P idea This gives us all the more reason to be cautious of unwarranted optimism about humanitarian intervention and the Responsibility to Protect Max Planck Yearbook of United Nations Law Jochen Abraham Frowein, Rüdiger Wolfrum, Christiane E. Philipp, 2000-09-28 Kosovo The Human Right to Dominate Nicola Perugini, Neve Gordon, 2015 The Human Right to Dominate investigates the Israel Palestine conflict to account for how human rights generally conceived as a counter hegemonic instrument for righting historical injustices are increasingly being deployed to further subjugate the weak and legitimize their domination Restoring Justice after Large-scale Violent Conflicts Ivo Aertsen, Jana Arsovska, Holger-C Rohne, Marta Valiñas, Kris Vanspauwen, 2013-05-13 This book provides a comparative analysis of the potential of restorative justice approaches to dealing with mass victimization in the context of large scale violent conflicts focusing on case studies from Kosovo Israel Palestine and Congo incorporating contributions from leading authorities in these areas One of the main objectives of the book is to examine if how and to what extent restorative justice is applicable in various different cultural social and historical contexts and what common themes can be identified within the different regions under analysis The book will also provide a critical analysis of the UN Basic Principles on the use of restorative justice programmes in criminal matters as applied to the context of large scale violence Military Thought , 2005 Bait and Switch Julie A. Mertus, 2008-02-19 In the second edition Mertus continues to show that America's attempts to promote human rights abroad have paradoxically undermined those rights in other countries including new sections on the second half of the Bush administration and the Iraq War and updates on Afghanistan The War Correspondent Greg McLaughlin, 2016-02-20 What is the role of the war reporter today Through interviews with prominent war and foreign correspondents such as John Pilger Robert Fisk Mary Dejevsky and Alex Thomson The War Correspondent delves into the most dangerous form of journalism From Crimea to Vietnam the Falklands to the Gulf and Afghanistan Iraq and the War on Terror the book examines the attractions and risks of war reporting the challenge of objectivity and impartiality in the war zone the danger that journalistic independence is compromised by military control censorship and public relations as well as the commercial and technological pressures of an intensely concentrated competitive news media environment As history and ideology return to the reporting of international conflict Greg McLaughlin asks what will that mean for a new generation of war correspondents attuned not to history or ideology but to the politics of the next conflict
