Earthshaking Science Susan Elizabeth Hough,2018-06-05 This is the first book to really make sense of the dizzying array of information that has emerged in recent decades about earthquakes Susan Hough a research seismologist in one of North America's most active earthquake zones and an expert at communicating this complex science to the public separates fact from fiction She fills in many of the blanks that remained after plate tectonics theory in the 1960s first gave us a rough idea of just what earthquakes are about How do earthquakes start How do they stop Do earthquakes occur at regular intervals on faults If not why not Are earthquakes predictable How hard will the ground shake following an earthquake of a given magnitude How does one quantify future seismic hazard As Hough recounts in brisk jargon free prose improvements in earthquake recording capability in the 1960s and 1970s set the stage for a period of rapid development in earthquake science Although some formidable enigmas have remained much has been learned on critical issues such as earthquake prediction seismic hazard assessment and ground motion prediction This book addresses those issues Because earthquake science is so new it has rarely been presented outside of technical journals that are all but opaque to nonspecialists Earthshaking Science changes all this It tackles the issues at the forefront of modern seismology in a way most readers can understand In it an expert conveys not only the facts but the passion and excitement associated with research at the frontiers of this fascinating field Hough proves beyond a doubt that this passion and excitement is more accessible than one might think

The Diversification of Health Bart

Penders, 2014-03-15 Complex problems and ambitious goals are often thought to become easier by enlarging and diversifying the group of experts dealing with them. As a result, these complex entities are fragmented into smaller ones that can be dealt with by single laboratories. Bart Penders ventured into nutrition science to observe and join teams of scientists to find out what happens to these problems and goals. He attended conferences and workshops and worked in their laboratories. He shows that scientists mobilise everything in their power to solve problems; they reconstruct elements of the problem such as our health. In the process, the search for health has led to its diversification.
