Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine whether there were differences in the prevalence of musculoskeletal disorders among different types of workers in the garment industry. The study included 600 employees from two garment factories in Mexico City. Data were collected by means of a self-administered questionnaire. Results showed that the prevalence of musculoskeletal disorders was higher among female than male workers. The prevalence of musculoskeletal disorders was also higher among workers who had worked longer in the garment industry. The prevalence of musculoskeletal disorders was higher among workers who performed more physically demanding tasks. The prevalence of musculoskeletal disorders was higher among workers who worked longer hours. The prevalence of musculoskeletal disorders was higher among workers who worked in the same position for longer periods of time. The prevalence of musculoskeletal disorders was higher among workers who worked in the same factory for longer periods of time.
