Ethical Naturalism Susana Nuccetelli, Gary

Seay, 2011-12-08 Ethical naturalism is narrowly construed as the doctrine that there are moral properties and facts at least some of which are natural properties and facts Perhaps owing to its having faced early on intuitively forceful objections by eliminativists and non naturalists ethical naturalism has only recently become a central player in the debates about the status of moral properties and facts which have occupied philosophers over the last century It has now become a driving force in those debates one with sufficient resources to challenge not only eliminativism especially in its various non cognitivist forms but also the most sophisticated versions of non naturalism This volume brings together twelve new essays which make it clear that in light of recent developments in analytic philosophy and the social sciences there are novel grounds for reassessing the doctrines at stake in these debates
