

The performance of @danielledeadwyler in "Till" is a towering achievement of dignity, humanity, honesty, vulnerability, restraint and power. Add to that the enormous importance (and relevance) of this story, and it is without question or slightest doubt one of the best performances by any actor male or female this past year and will be the performance I am selecting as Best Actress at the SAG Awards.

There is only one reason I can think of (and hate to) that would cause the Academy to ignore her (and this film). The reason? Read director Chinonye Chukwu's January 24th Instagram post to find out.

The absence of @danielledeadwyler in the leading actress category is made even more troubling by the inclusion of Andrea Riseborough (if you don't know why that's troubling, look the story up please and see how campaigning for something or someone can mean far more to the Academy than caring about the art form).

But make no mistake: it is not Andrea's fault that Danielle Deadwyler wasn't nominated:

It's the Academy's fault.

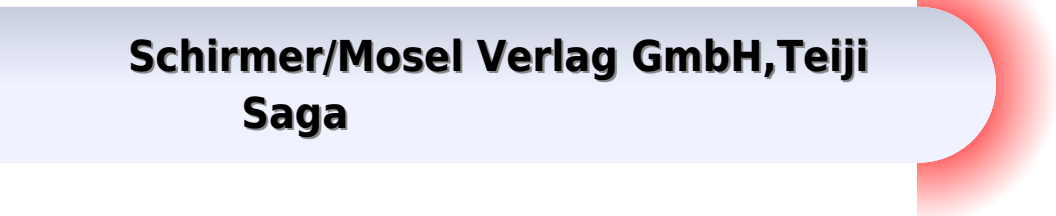

More to the point: it is their "choice" to continue to support a system that does what far too many systems in America still do:

Discriminate.

Which is exactly what "Till" begs us to wake up and stop doing.
