An Environmental History of Latin America Shawn William Miller,2007-08-27 A narration of the mutually mortal historical contest between humans and nature in Latin America Covering a period that begins with Amerindian civilizations and concludes in the region's present urban agglomerations the work offers an original synthesis of the current scholarship on Latin America's environmental history and argues that tropical nature played a central role in shaping the region's historical development Human attitudes populations and appetites from Aztec cannibalism to more contemporary forms of conspicuous consumption figure prominently in the story However characters such as hookworms whales hurricanes bananas dirt butterflies guano and fungi make more than cameo appearances Recent scholarship has overturned many of our egocentric assumptions about humanity's role in history Seeing Latin America's environmental past from the perspective of many centuries illustrates that human civilizations ancient and modern have been simultaneously more powerful and more vulnerable than previously thought

Rio de Janeiro in the Global Meat Market, c. 1850 to c. 1930 Maria-Aparecida Lopes,2021-07-19 This book examines the meat provision system of Rio de Janeiro from the 1850s to the 1930s Until the 1920s Rio was Brazil's economic hub main industrial city and prime consumer market Meat consumption was an indicator of living standards and a matter of public concern The work unveils that in the second half of the nineteenth century the city was well supplied with red meat Initially dwellers relied mostly on salted meat then in the latter decades of the 1800s two sets of changes upgraded fresh meat deliveries First ranching expansion and transportation innovation in southeast and central west Brazil guaranteed a continuous flow of cattle to Rio Second the municipal centralization of meat processing and distribution made its provision regular and predictable By the early twentieth century fresh meat replaced salted meat in the urban marketplace This study examines these developments in light of national and global developments in the livestock and meat industries
