

Test of Auditory Analysis Skills

Rosner, J. (1993). Helping Children Overcome Learning Difficulties. 3rd Ed. Walker and Company, NY.

The TAAS evaluates the child's ability to identify the separate sounds in spoken words and the temporal sequence of those sounds. It does this by asking the child to delete sounds and to show that s/he can do this by voicing what is left after the deletion. Children are first able to grasp this concept at about age four and become better at it from then on. The TAAS is for use with kindergarten children (and some preschool children).

Demonstration Item

The first two items of the test (Items A and B) are for demonstration, for familiarizing the child with the test. For example, Item A asks the child to "Say 'steamboat,'" and then once s/he has said it (thereby demonstrating that he heard and remembers it, at least for the moment), "Now say it again, but this time don't say 'boat', just say what's left." The average 4-year-old can do this – delete a syllable from a two-syllable, compound word.

If the child does not understand the task, try teaching it to him/her in the following way:

1. Have the child extend his/her two hands forward.
2. Repeat the item slowly, emphasizing the two separate syllables by pausing between them.
3. Touch his/her left hand as you say the first syllable ("steam") and his/her right hand as you say the second syllable ("boat"), thereby giving him/her a visual/spatial reference point for each of the syllables.
4. If he/she is still unable to comprehend the task, explain to him/her that "this hand" (touch his/her left hand) "says 'steam,'" and "this hand" (touch his/her right hand) "says 'boat'."
5. Then repeat the item: "Say 'steamboat'." (Again, touch each hand as you say its syllable.) Then, after s/he has said "steamboat": "Now say it again, but leave off 'boat.' Just say what's left." (As you say the last two sentences, move his/her right hand to his/her side, allowing only the left hand to extend forward.)

If your teaching efforts work, then go on with the test. If it fails to teach him/her the concept, simply accept the fact that the test is too demanding, that s/he has not yet developed the basic auditory analysis skills that four-year-olds are normally able to display.

If the child understands the test, as illustrated by his/her being able to answer Items A and B correctly, you can begin formal testing with item one. This item, like the two demonstration items, asks the child to delete one syllable from a two-syllable, compound word.

If the child does not respond to an item once you have gotten past the demonstration words, repeat the item once but do not teach – all teaching must be limited to the demonstration items.
