So Each

May Learn John Alexander Jordan, 2006 Abstract In this study seventh graders were exposed to a unit focusing on a the formal element of shape b the design element of focal point and c media of watercolor and pen and ink in a homeroom logo project Lessons in the unit were inserted into a matrix suggested by Silver Strong and Perini 2000 that cross indexes learning styles and multiple intelligences According to authors the matrix determines whether a current unit of study meets the learning style and multiple intelligence needs of all students and pinpoints where enhancement of the unit should occur The authors also claim that use of the matrix in unit planning will not only meet all the learning needs of the students but that all students will succeed Data were collected to determine whether use of the matrix in planning a unit of study actually improved the ability of all students to complete the homeroom logo unit successfully Data were collected from a variety of student works results from a Multiple Intelligences Learning Styles inventory a pop vocabulary quiz a regular vocabulary test student written reflections and a final graded artwork While some results were calculated numerically qualitative findings were achieved through content analysis Findings determined the following 1 Each multiple intelligence and each learning style were a strength for at least one student participant supporting the claims that the theories represent each student in the population 2 Use of the matrix as suggested by Silver Strong and Perini 2000 for creation of units that meet the needs of all students learning styles and multiple intelligences will achieve a higher percentage of student success but not 100% 3 Extenuating circumstances e g attendance negative attitude and other factors outside the purview of the art class or the matrix will negatively impact success of some students no matter how carefully a unit plan may be constructed
