Being Religious Mladen Turk, 2013-07-12 What makes us religious What is religion This book presents relevant research and theoretical proposals for evolutionary theories of religion and socially and ecologically adaptive theories of religion Most attempts to study religious behaviors through evolutionary biology and related disciplines are still very fragmentary Mladen Turk brings those theoretical approaches in dialogue with religious studies and theology through interpretation and critique that centers on revealing hidden theological assumptions and interpreting theoretical leaps of those approaches to religion In Being Religious Turk expounds understanding of religion as a complex interplay of various capacities arising from and influencing

our biological and cultural makeup Our religious behaviors can influence our relationship towards each other and towards our environment in significant ways He shows how some aspects of complex religious behaviors can be understood better in light of human cognition and evolutionary biology At the same time he interprets this knowledge as being preliminary and at times inadequate in its claims of completeness and exhaustiveness because religious behaviors are niched within other religious behaviors and dependent on factors that various mono causal theoretical approaches cannot fully conceptualize

Mixed Messages Robert A. Paul, 2015-04-24 As social and symbolic animals animals with language and systems of signs humans are informed by two different kinds of heritage one biological the other cultural Scholars have tended to study our genetic and symbolic lineages separately but in recent years some have begun to explore them together offering a dual inheritance theory In this book Robert A Paul offers an entirely new and original consideration of our dual inheritance to date going deep inside an extensive ethnographic record to outline a fascinating relationship between our genetic codes and symbolic systems Examining a wide array of cultures Paul reveals how the inherent tensions between these two modes of transmission generate many of the features of human society such as marriage rules initiation rituals gender asymmetry and sexual symbolism Exploring differences in the requirements range and agendas of genetic and symbolic reproduction he shows that a properly conceived dual inheritance model does a better job of accounting for the distinctive character of actual human societies than either evolutionary or socio cultural construction theories can do alone Ultimately this book offers a powerful call for a synthesis of the traditions inspired by Darwin Durkheim and Freud one that is critically necessary if we are to advance our understanding of human social life
