Health, 2006 Preventing Alcohol Abuse Among Adolescents Gayle M. Boyd, Jan Howard, Robert A. Zucker, 1994. Organized in terms of an implicit phases model, this special issue begins with two analyses of risk and protective factors that influence adolescent drinking patterns over time without the intrusion of deliberate intervention. The remaining articles focus almost entirely on intervention research studies that test or evaluate intervention strategies in terms of their impact or potential impact on alcohol use and abuse by adolescents. They are organized in terms of a micro-macro environmental perspective, moving from the smaller microcosm of the family through school settings, communities, and large governmental jurisdictions. The papers in this issue lay the foundation for future avenues of inquiry and highlight some very important emergent research themes. It is clear that family systems are attracting attention as potential environments for preventive interventions. Historically, families have been perceived as sources of alcohol problems and targets of treatment. Now they are being viewed as possible protective systems and settings for deliberate intervention before alcohol-related problems actually occur.

This is the second volume in a two-volume set reporting the results of all surveys through 1991 from the Monitoring the Future study of American secondary school students and young adults. Volume II begins with chapter 11, which provides an introduction to the volume, noting that Monitoring the Future consists of an ongoing series of annual national surveys of American high school seniors begun in 1975, the results of which are presented in volume I, and a series of annual follow-up surveys of representative samples of the previous participants from each high school senior class going back to the Class of 1976. It further notes that this volume presents the results of the 1977 through 1991 follow-up surveys of the graduating classes of 1976 through 1990. Chapter 12 presents an overview of key findings examining trends in illicit drug use, alcohol use, and cigarette smoking, and noting college, noncollege, and male/female differences. Racial and ethnic comparisons are included. Chapter 13 describes the study design and procedures; chapter 14 looks at the prevalence of drug use among young adults; and chapter 15 explores trends in drug use among young adults. Chapter 16 focuses on the attitudes and beliefs about drugs among young adults, while chapter 17 concentrates on the social milieu. Chapters 18 and 19 focus on college students, looking at the prevalence of and trends in drug use in this population. Twenty-six tables and 48 figures illustrate data from the study. Author NB.
