Some Experiences With Poetry Memoirs Continued:

Some Experiences with Poetry Eve Jensen, 2005-07 Arizona 1994 Going from zilch in the line of composing poetry all the way up to feeling competent enough to write a paper about the process and perhaps eventually publish a book is another of those life learning journeys we all take Sometimes it s a matter of talent Some people are just born with the uncanny ability to write some thing down in suitable form and have it connect with other people s brain cells Then there are those of us who must learn step by step over many years through changing attitudes and varied ex periences Oskaloosa IA 2004 This book see what can happen in ten years is not intended as a how to textbook If anyone who feels incompetent in the field of poetry just happens to learn from it let me know I ll be gratified My purposes in starting to organize things in my poetry box down in Arizona ten years ago include 1 therapy while Hal was sinking into dementia 2 amusement because if you don t laugh you cry 3 the hope that I can connect with other people in a field which has come to mean a great deal to me 4 to share with others that part of my life spent experimenting with writing and teaching poetry 5 to share some poetry which has not only impressed and inspired but also influenced both my writing and my thinking Have a good time on the journey upon which you have embarked now that you have this book in your hands

The Annual Register Edmund Burke, 1905 Continuation of the reference work that originated with Robert Dodsley written and published each year which records and analyzes the year's major events developments and trends in Great Britain and throughout the world From the 1920s volumes of The Annual Register took the essential shape in which they have continued ever since opening with the history of Britain then a section on foreign history covering each country or region in turn Following these are the chronicle of events brief retrospectives on the year's cultural and economic developments a short selection of documents and obituaries of eminent persons who died in the year

Voicing the Soviet Experience

Katharine Hodgson, 2003-11-06 This is a long overdue examination of a poet whose career offers a case study in the complexities facing Soviet writers in the Stalin era Olga Berggol'ts 1910-1975 was a prominent Russian Soviet poet whose accounts of heroism in wartime Leningrad brought her fame This volume addresses her position as a writer whose Party loyalties were frequently in conflict with the demands of artistic and personal integrity Writers who pursued their careers under the restrictions of the Stalin era have been categorized as official figures whose work is assumed to be drab inept and opportunistic but such assumptions impose a uniformity on the work of Soviet writers that the censors and the Writers Union could not achieve An exploration of Berggol'ts's work shows that the borders between official and unofficial literature were in fact permeable and shifting This book draws on unpublished sources such as diaries and notebooks to reveal the range and scope of her work and to show how conflict and ambiguity functioned as a creative structuring principle Dr Hodgson discusses how Berggol'ts's lyric poetry constructs the subject from multiple conflicting discourses and examines the poet's treatment of genres such as narrative verse verse tragedy and prose in the changing cultural context of the 1950s Berggol'ts's use of inter-textual and especially intra-textual reference is also investigated the intensively self-referential nature of her work creates a web of allusion which connects texts of different genres official as well as unofficial writing This study will provoke readers into reassessing the cultural heritage of an era that can seem remote and impenetrable but which like Olga Berggol'ts was far more complex and intriguing
