

I'm a scientist in the morning, an artist in the afternoon
And a writer at night
There is simply not enough time in the day to do all three
So I sought a way to merge them

By combining experimentation, doodling and poetry
I was able to add a twist to traditional poetry
These poems express who I am and how I view the world
Neurotic at times, trying to find balance and understanding

Science is about conducting new research
Analytical observation is what they teach
First one must create a plan then lurch
Experimentation without breach

Art is painting a birch
Or a sunset on a beach
A bird sitting on a perch
One as pretty as a peach

Writing has become my church
Poems are the sermons I preach
My life has become a word search
To improve on my way of speech

For a muse I go on a search
One no longer out of reach
Its beauty I won't besmirch
Understanding I beseech
