

The concepts of social psychology

To improve social dynamics and overall wellbeing, social psychology works to examine the behaviours of an individual and the group around them.

The Processes Involved

The goal is to encourage individuals to act on their own merit and when analysing behavioural changes, the following concepts are first explored.

01. Social Influence

In order to seek acceptance, the opinions of a group can influence a person's behaviour and thoughts.

Conformity

Change of opinion or behaviour based on perceived pressure

Compliance

Openly agreeing to a group but privately disagreeing

Obedience

Behaviour is influenced by social power and authority

Minority performance

The minority influences the majority for acceptance

02. Group Behaviour

A person's decision making and actions can be influenced within a large or small group. Group dynamics can be factored into the following areas of behaviour

Group think

Making a decision in a group dynamic

Group shift

Change in opinion when surrounded by like-minded people

Deindividualisation

When a person solely goes along with the group's opinion

03. Social Cognition

Within a social context, individuals tend to put importance on what others think and how they behave. Social cognition explores the processes involved in the perception of social stimuli to predict behaviours.

Processing

Making sense of their environment through observation

Storing

Remembering and interpreting social behaviours

Applying

Forming an impression of another and responding

Judgments over Time Lawrence J. Sanna, Edward C. Chang, 2006-03-16 Time pervades every aspect of people's lives We are all affected by remnants of our pasts assessments of our presents and forecasts of our futures Our thoughts feelings and behaviors over time inexorably intertwine and intermingle determining varied reactions such as affect and emotions as well as future behaviors The purpose of this volume is to bring together the diverse theory and research of an outstanding group of scholars whose work relates to people's judgments over time To date much theory and research on temporal variables within psychology has remained somewhat fragmented isolated and even provincial researchers in particular domains are either unaware of or are paying little attention to each other's work Integrating the theory and research into a single volume will bring about a greater awareness and appreciation of conceptual relations between seemingly disparate topics define and promote the state of scientific knowledge in these areas and set the agenda for future work The volume presents the two main ways of looking at judgments over time looking at how people's thoughts about the future and the past affect their present states and looking at the interplay over time among people's thoughts feelings and behaviors

Ickes, 2012-12-06 Several years ago two of my colleagues and I had the opportunity to interview Fritz Heider perhaps the most influential theorist in the field of social psychology Harvey Ickes Kidd 1976 During our interview Heider affirmed a belief that had guided his career since the 1920s the belief that the study of human relationships is the most important task in which social scientists can engage Although many social scientists would profess to share this belief it is nonetheless true that the study of human relationships has been one of the most neglected tasks in the history of the social sciences including psychology What Heider found in the 1920s that most psychologists acknowledged the importance of studying human relationships but at the same time tended to focus their own research on more tractable topics such as memory and cognition is still very much evident in the 1980s Even within the more specific domain of social psychology a majority of researchers still choose to address those hybrid topics social cognition social categorization and stereotyping person memory etc that relate most directly to traditional areas of psychological research Still other researchers while choosing to study such important interpersonal phenomena as altruism aggression conflict and interpersonal attraction tend to focus so exclusively on these isolated and abstracted phenomena that they fail to provide a more inclusive view of the relationships in which these phenomena occur
