The Harvard College Observatory Bessie Zaban Jones, Lyle Gifford Boyd, 1971 Since its founding in 1839 the Harvard College Observatory has pioneered in the development of modern astronomy Its first directors early recognized the potential of spectroscopy in revealing the constitution of the stars and of photography in determining the positions and motions of celestial objects the library of photographic plates made under their direction provides an invaluable history of the stellar universe for the period The Observatory also pioneered in using the talents of women several of whom became noted astronomers and their monumental classification of stars from spectral records constitutes a fundamental contribution to astronomical knowledge The authors vividly portray the genesis growth and achievements of a major scientific institution and its relations with other observatories Through the use of photographs and correspondence they also portray the men and women who played essential roles in the development of astronomy in the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries ,

Moyer,1992-09-23 In late nineteenth century America Simon Newcomb was the nation's most celebrated scientist and irascibly doggedly tirelessly he made the most of it Officially a mathematical astronomer heading a government agency Newcomb spent as much of his life out of the observatory as in it acting as a spokesman for the nascent but restive scientific community of his time Newcomb saw the scientific method as a potential guide for all disciplines and a basis for all practical action and argued passionately that it was of as much use in the halls of Congress as in the laboratory In so doing he not only sparked popular support for American science but also confronted a wide spectrum of social cultural and intellectual issues This first full length study of Newcomb traces the development of his faith in science and ranges over topics of great public debate in the Gilded Age from the reform of economic theory to the recasting of the debate between science and religion Moyer's portrait of a restless eager mind also illuminates the bustle of late nineteenth century America Women Scientists in America Margaret W. Rossiter,1982 Winner of the Berkshire Conference of Women Historians Prize In volume one of this landmark study focusing on developments up to 1940 Margaret Rossiter describes the activities and personalities of the numerous women scientists astronomers chemists biologists and psychologists who overcame extraordinary obstacles to contribute to the growth of American science This remarkable history recounts women's efforts to establish themselves as members of the scientific community and examines the forces that inhibited their active and visible participation in the sciences Born in Cambridge Karen Weintraub,Michael Kuchta,2022-05-03 Anne Bradstreet W E B Du Bois gene editing and Junior Mints cultural icons
