John Burton

The Ok Tedi litigation crisis is a topic that defies compression: at least five books (Jackson 1982, 1993; Browne et al. 1983; Pintz 1984; Hyndman 1994) and one PhD (Anere 1993) described the project as it was even before the crisis emerged. Before I give my version of these events, the avenues of discussion can be narrowed down considerably if common ground can be established. There has been a real crisis generated by the Ok Tedi mine, which was acutely felt as an environmental disaster by people in the Ok Tedi impact area—predominantly, but not only, by the people of the Alice River. It was experienced by the mine operator as a threat so serious as to jeopardise the worth of continuing the project, and as corporate pain so acute to BHP, the principal shareholder and target of the court cases, that it would go to considerable lengths not to repeat them.

Establishing this common ground is necessary for two reasons. First, I frequently meet people who, disagreeing with the basic facts of the case, believe the crisis was in some way the product of mischievous forces bent on interfering with the legitimate company-government relations. Second, if the crisis was an illusion, my chapter is rendered largely worthless; if nothing happened, seeking out historical turning points and overlooked opportunities of averting crisis is not a meaningful exercise to have undertaken. If so, then the analysis for predictive

Transnational Corporations and Human Rights J. Frynas, S. Pegg, 2003-06-09 Bringing together a diverse group of contributors this collection addresses the impact of transnational corporations on human rights Topics covered include corporate social responsibility the impact of corporations on internal conflicts and codes of conduct Case studies range from the negative effects of the Nigerian oil industry to the positive engagement by a logging company with the Nuuchahnulth people in Canada The book uniquely combines the discussion of conceptual issues with an in depth examination of specific corporations and industries

Large-scale Mines and Local-level Politics Colin Filer, Pierre-Yves Le Meur, 2017-10-20 Despite the difference in their populations and political status New Caledonia and Papua New Guinea have comparable levels of economic dependence on the extraction and export of mineral resources For this reason the costs and benefits of large scale mining projects for indigenous communities has been a major political issue in both jurisdictions and one that has come to be negotiated through multiple channels at different levels of political organisation The resource boom that took place in the early years of the current century has only served to intensify the political contests and conflicts that surround the distribution of social economic and environmental costs and benefits between community members and other stakeholders in the large scale mining industry However the mutual isolation of Anglophone and Francophone scholars has formed a barrier to systematic comparison of the relationship between large scale mines and local level politics in Papua New Guinea and New Caledonia despite their geographical proximity This collection of essays represents an effort to overcome this barrier but is also intended as a major contribution to the growth of academic and political debate about the social impact of the large scale mining industry in Melanesia and beyond

The Pacific Islands Moshe Rapaport, 2013-05-31 The Pacific is the last major world region to be discovered by humans Although small in total land area its numerous islands and archipelagoes with their startlingly diverse habitats and biotas extend across a third of the globe This revised edition of a popular text explores the diverse landforms climates and ecosystems of the Pacific island region Multiple chapters written by leading specialists cover the environment history culture population and economy The work includes new or completely revised chapters on gender music logging development education urbanization health ocean resources and tourism Throughout two key issues are addressed the exceptional environmental challenges and the demographic economic political challenges facing the region Although modern technology and media and waves of continental tourists are fast eroding island cultures the continuing resilience of Pacific island populations is apparent This is the only contemporary text on the Pacific Islands that covers both environment and sociocultural issues and will thus be indispensable for any serious student of the region Unlike other reviews it treats the entirety of Oceania with the exception of Australia and is well illustrated with numerous photos and maps including a regional atlas Contributors David Abbott Dennis A Ahlburg Glenn Banks John Barker Geoffrey Bertram David A Chappell William C Clarke John Connell Ron Crocombe Julie Cupples Derrick Depledge Colin Filer Gerard J Fryer thousands of cases each week This anthropological study is grounded in ethnographic research on three different village courts and the communities they serve It also explores the colonial historical background to the establishment of the village court system and the local and global processes influencing the efforts of village courts to deal with everyday disputes among grassroots Melanesians

Engaged Anthropology Stuart Kirsch, 2018-03-30 Does anthropology have more to offer than just its texts In this timely and remarkable book Stuart Kirsch shows how anthropology can and why it should become more engaged with the problems of the world Engaged Anthropology draws on the author's experiences working with indigenous peoples fighting for their environment land rights and political sovereignty Including both short interventions and collaborations spanning decades it recounts interactions with lawyers and courts nongovernmental organizations scientific experts and transnational corporations This unflinchingly honest account addresses the unexamined backstage of engaged anthropology Coming at a time when some question the viability of the discipline the message of this powerful and original work is especially welcome as it not only promotes a new way of doing anthropology but also compellingly articulates a new rationale for why anthropology matters

Customary Land Tenure and Registration in Australia and Papua New Guinea James F. Weiner, Katie Glaskin, 2007-06-01 The main theme of this volume is a discussion of the ways in which legal mechanisms such as the Land Groups Incorporation Act 1974 in PNG and the Native Title Act 1993 in Australia do not as they purport serve merely to identify and register already existing customary indigenous landowning groups in these countries Because the legislation is an integral part of the way in which indigenous people are defined and managed in relation to the State it serves to elicit particular responses in landowner organisation and self identification on the part of indigenous people These pieces of legislation actively contour the progressive evolution of landowner social territorial and political organisation at all levels in these nation states The contributors to this volume provide in depth anthropological case studies of social structural and cultural transformations engendered by the confrontation between states developers and indigenous communities over rights to customarily owned land

Mining Capitalism Stuart Kirsch, 2014-06-07 Corporations are among the most powerful institutions of our time but they are also responsible for a wide range of harmful social and environmental impacts Consequently political movements and nongovernmental organizations increasingly contest the risks that corporations pose to people and nature Mining Capitalism examines the strategies through which corporations manage their relationships with these critics and adversaries By focusing on the conflict over the Ok Tedi copper and gold mine in Papua New Guinea Stuart Kirsch tells the story of a slow moving environmental disaster and the international network of indigenous peoples advocacy groups and lawyers that sought to protect local rivers and rain forests Along the way he analyzes how corporations promote their interests by manipulating science and invoking the discourses of sustainability and social responsibility Based on two decades of anthropological research this book is comparative in scope showing readers how similar dynamics operate in other industries around the world

Policy Making and Implementation Ronald James May, 2009-09-01 There is a vast literature on the principles of public administration and good governance and no shortage of theoreticians practitioners and donors eager to push for public sector reform especially in less developed countries Papua New Guinea has had its share of public sector reforms frequently under the influence of multinational agencies and aid donors Yet there seems to be a general consensus both within and outside Papua New Guinea that policy making and implementation have fallen short of expectations that there has been a failure to achieve good governance This volume which brings together a number of Papua New Guinean and Australian based scholars and practitioners with deep familiarity of policy making in Papua New Guinea examines the record of policy making and implementation in Papua New Guinea since independence It reviews the history of public sector reform in Papua New Guinea and provides case studies of policy making and implementation in a number of areas including the economy agriculture mineral development health education lands environment forestry decentralization law and order defence women and foreign affairs privatization and AIDS Policy is continuously evolving but this study documents the processes of policy making and implementation over a number of years with the hope that a better understanding of past successes and failures will contribute to improved governance in the future Papua New Guinea in the Twenty-First Century David Lea, 2023-04-24 Papua New Guinea is a relatively recent independent state engaged in a struggle to develop economically and exercise a degree of sovereignty This work articulates the challenges that confront the young nation including security economic viability delivery of services and control of political corruption While these are matters internal to the functionality of the nation state the author argues that matters have changed dramatically with China's growing influence in the region and the ensuing competition between the United States and China With this increasing geopolitical importance there is the promise of financial benefit but there are also new challenges as there is the ever present danger of becoming enmeshed in superpower competition David Lea argues that lack of economic development and continuing aid dependency may well render island nations such as Papua New Guinea susceptible to political manipulation and further loss of sovereignty including even a risk of military involvement Pacific Economic Bulletin, 2005

Dilemmas of Development Colin Filer, 2012-12-01 The main purpose of this volume is to publish and thus to publicise the factual material contained in a series of consultancy reports commissioned by the Porgera Joint Venture PJV between 1992 and 1994 Banks 1993 1994a 1994b 1994c Bonne111994 These reports dealt with the social and economic impact of the Porgera gold mine on the population of the Porgera Valley during the period which had elapsed since the Government of Papua New Guinea PNG signed a Mining Development Contract with the PJV in April 1989 They were commissioned as part of what became known as the Porgera Social Monitoring Programme which was itself intended to satisfy some of the conditions which the PNG Department of Environment and Conservation DEC had attached to its approval of the company's Environmental Plan NSR 1988 and Environmental Management and Monitoring Programme PJV 1991 The substance of these reports has been revised and edited to form Chapters 2-7 of the present volume The last two chapters have been specially commissioned from two other social scientists who have studied the social impact of the mining project and who were asked to provide their own comments on the design management and output of the Porgera Social Monitoring Programme
