The Other Half A Self Portrait By Clark Kenneth:

The Other Half Kenneth Clark, 1977 Kenneth Clark's second volume of autobiography

What Is Art For? Ellen Dissanayake, 2015-09-01 Every human society displays some form of behavior that can be called art and in most societies other than our own the arts play an integral part in social life Those who wish to understand art in its broadest sense as a universal human endowment need to go beyond modern Western elitist notions that disregard other cultures and ignore the human species four million year evolutionary history This book offers a new and unprecedentedly comprehensive theory of the evolutionary significance of art Art meaning not only visual art but music poetic language dance and performance is for the first time regarded from a biobehavioral or ethical viewpoint It is shown to be a biological necessity in human existence and fundamental characteristic of the human species In this provocative study Ellen Dissanayake examines art along with play and ritual as human behaviors that make special and proposes that making special is an inherited tendency as intrinsic to the human species as speech and toolmaking She claims that the arts evolved as means of making socially important activities memorable and pleasurable and thus have been essential to human survival Avoiding simplism and reductionism this original synthetic approach permits a fresh look at old questions about the origins nature purpose and value of art It crosses disciplinary boundaries and integrates a number of diverse fields human ethology evolutionary biology the psychology and philosophy of art physical and cultural anthropology primitive and prehistoric art Western cultural history and children's art The final chapter From Tradition to Aestheticism explores some of the ways in which modern Western society has diverged from other societies particularly the type of society in which human beings evolved and considers the effects of the aberrance on our art and our attitudes toward art This book is addressed to readers who have a concerned interest in the arts or in human nature and the state of modern society

Keynes Hayek Nicholas Wapshott, 2011-10-11 Provides a history of the diverging economic viewpoints that emerged after the 1929 stock market crash one from Cambridge economist John Maynard Keynes the other from Austrian economics professor Friedrich Hayek

"Marketing Art in the British Isles, 1700 to the Present" Charlotte Gould, 2017-07-05 A cultural history of the first truly modern art market Marketing Art in the British Isles 1700 to the Present furthers the burgeoning exploration of Britain's struggle to carve a niche for itself on the international art scene Bringing together scholars from the UK US Europe and Asia this collection sheds new light on such crucial notions as the internationalization of the art market the emergence of an increasingly complex exhibition culture issues of national rivalry and emulation artists individual and collective strategies for their own promotion and survival the persistent anti commercialism of an elite group of art lovers and critics and accusations of philistinism levelled at the middle classes as well as an unquestionable native British genius at reconciling jarring discourses Essays explore the unresolved tension between artistic aspirations and commercial interest a tension that has come to shape Britain's national artistic tradition from the perspectives of artists dealers and super collectors and the upwardly mobile middle classes whose consumerism gave rise to the British art market as it is known today Specific case studies include Whistler Roger Fry Damien Hirst and Charles Saatchi essays consider art markets from London and Manchester to Paris and Flanders Gandhi & Churchill Arthur Herman, 2008-04-29 In this fascinating and meticulously researched book bestselling historian Arthur Herman sheds new light on two of the most universally recognizable icons of the twentieth century and reveals how their forty year rivalry sealed the fate of India and the British Empire They were born worlds apart Winston Churchill to Britain's most glamorous aristocratic family Mohandas Gandhi to a pious middle class household in a provincial town in India Yet Arthur Herman reveals how their lives and careers became intertwined as the twentieth century unfolded Both men would go on to lead their nations through harrowing trials and two world wars and become locked in a fierce contest of wills that would decide the fate of countries continents and ultimately an empire Gandhi Churchill reveals how both men were more alike than different and yet became bitter enemies over the future of India a land of 250 million people with 147 languages and dialects and 15 distinct religions the jewel in the crown of Britain's overseas empire for 200 years Over the course of a long career Churchill would do whatever was necessary to ensure that India remain British including a fateful redrawing of the entire map of the Middle East and even risking his alliance with the United States during World War Two Mohandas Gandhi by contrast would dedicate his life to India's liberation defy death and imprisonment and create an entirely new kind of political movement satyagraha or civil disobedience His campaigns of nonviolence in defiance of Churchill and the British including his famous Salt March would become the blueprint not only for the independence of India but for the civil rights movement in the U S and struggles for freedom across the world Now master storyteller Arthur Herman cuts through the legends and myths about these two powerful charismatic figures and reveals their flaws as well as their strengths The result is a sweeping epic of empire and insurrection war and political intrigue with a fascinating supporting cast including General Kitchener Rabindranath Tagore Franklin Roosevelt Lord Mountbatten and Mohammed Ali Jinnah the founder of Pakistan It is also a brilliant narrative parable of two men whose great successes were always haunted by personal failure and whose final moments of triumph were overshadowed by the loss of what they held most dear Community Art Kate

Crehan, 2020-05-26 Exploring key issues for the anthropology of art and art theory this fascinating text provides the first in depth study of community art from an anthropological perspective The book focuses on the forty year history of Free Form Arts Trust an arts group that played a major part in the 1970s struggle to carve out a space for community arts in Britain Turning their back on the world of gallery art the fine artist founders of Free Form were determined to use their visual expertise to connect through collaborative art projects with the working class people excluded by the established art world In seeking to give the residents of poor communities a greater role in shaping their built environment the artists aesthetic practice would be transformed Community Art examines this process of aesthetic transformation and its rejection of the individualized practice of the gallery artist The Free Form story calls into question common understandings of the categories of art expertise and community and makes this story relevant beyond late twentieth century and early twenty first century Britain

British Cinema and the Second World War Robert Murphy, 2005-08-15 The author provides a decade by decade analysis of every film ever made in Britain about World War II It provides a comprehensive account of how Britain has portrayed the war through films

Bringing Art to Life Andrew Horrall, 2009-09-14 Only thirty nine when he took over the National Gallery in 1955 Jarvis already had an extraordinary record of achievement and social mobility at home and in England he had trained with Canada's greatest artists won a Rhodes scholarship lunched at the Algonquin Round Table in New York managed an aircraft factory written a bestseller produced films run a slum settlement and moved in a London social circle that included Noël Coward and Vivien Leigh As head of the National Gallery Jarvis was a provocative public educator advocating his idea of a museum without walls in countless public appearances Instrumental in bringing modern art to the National Gallery he shook artists and the art minded public out of a period of national complacency This first detailed account of the controversy surrounding his time at the gallery provides an important context for the ongoing and contested role of publicly supported arts and art institutions in this country

Walter Greenwood's 'Love on the Dole' Chris Hopkins, 2018-04-27 This book gives the fullest account so far of the origins success and public impact of Walter Greenwood's Love on the Dole in all three of its versions novel 1933 play 1935 and film 1941

"Australian Art and Artists in London, 1950-1965" Simon Pierse, 2017-07-05 Subtle and wide ranging in its account this study explores the impact of Australian art in Britain in the two decades following the end of World War II and preceding the Swinging Sixties In a transitional period of decolonization in Britain Australian painting was briefly seized upon as a dynamic and reinvigorating force in contemporary art and a group of Australian artists settled in London where they held centre stage with group and solo exhibitions in the capital's most prestigious galleries The book traces the key influences of Sir Kenneth Clark Bernard Smith and Bryan Robertson in their various and varying roles as patrons ideologues and entrepreneurs for Australian art as well as the self definition and interaction of the artists themselves Simon Pierse interweaves multiple issues of the period into a cohesive historical narrative including the mechanics of the British art world the limited and frustrating cultural scene of 1950s Australia and the conservative influence of Australian government bodies Publishing for the first time archival material letters and photographs previously unavailable to scholars either in Britain or Australia this book demonstrates how the work of expatriate Australian artists living in London constructed a distinct vision of Australian identity for a foreign market

Arts TV John Albert Walker, 1993 From Monitor to The Late Show British television programs featuring the visual arts are profiled here The various types or genres of arts programs are identified including review programs strand series drama documentaries and artists profiles and a chronological account of their evolution from 1936 to the 1990s is provided Major series such as Civilization Ways of Seeing Shock of the New State of the Art and Relative Values are examined in detail

Art, Propaganda and Aerial Warfare in Britain during the Second World War Rebecca Searle, 2020-07-23 The War

Artists Advisory Committee WAAC were responsible for the production of some of the most iconic images of the Second World War. Despite its rich historical value, this collection has been poorly utilised by historians and hasn't been subjected to the levels of analysis afforded to other forms of wartime culture. This innovative study addresses this gap by bringing official war art into dialogue with the social, economic and military histories of the Second World War. Rebecca Searle explores the tensions between the documentarist and propagandistic roles of the WAAC in their representation of aerial warfare in the battle for production, the Battle of Britain, the Blitz and the bombing of Germany. Her analyses demonstrate that whilst there was a strong correlation between war art and propaganda, the WAAC depicted many aspects of experience that were absent from wartime propaganda, such as class divisions within the services, gendered hierarchies within industries, civilian death and the true nature of the bombing of Germany. In addition, she shows that propagandistic constructions were not entirely separate from lived experience but reflected experience and shaped the way that individuals made sense of the war. Accessibly written, highly illustrated and packed with valuable examples of the use of war art as historical source, this book will enhance our understanding of the social and cultural history of Britain during the Second World War.

British Art for Australia, 1860-1953 Matthew C. Potter, 2018-12-21. Traditional postcolonial scholarship on art and imperialism emphasises tensions between colonising cores and subjugated peripheries. The ties between London and British white settler colonies have been comparatively neglected. Artworks not only reveal the controlling intentions of imperialist artists in their creation but also the uses to which they were put by others in their afterlives. In many cases they were used to fuel contests over cultural identity which expose a mixture of rifts and consensuses within the British ranks which were frequently assumed to be homogeneous. British Art for Australia 1860-1953: The Acquisition of Artworks from the United Kingdom by Australian National Galleries represents the first systematic and comparative study of collecting British art in Australia between 1860 and 1953, using the archives of the Australian national galleries and other key Australian and UK institutions. Multiple audiences in the disciplines of art history, cultural history and museology are addressed by analysing how Australians used British art to carve a distinct identity which artworks were desirable, economically attainable and why, and how the acquisition of British art fits into a broader cultural context of the British world. It considers the often competing roles of the British Old Masters (e.g. Romney and Constable), Victorian (e.g. Madox Brown and Millais) and modern artists (e.g. Nash and Spencer) alongside political and economic factors including the developing global art market, imperial commerce, Australian Federation, the First World War and the coming of age of the Commonwealth.

Only in the Common People Paul Long, 2008-12-18. Corrupt and moronic though the common people are, seemingly becoming only in the common people can the true work be rooted, the true tradition rediscovered and re-informed. Charles Parker, BBC Radio Producer, 1959. In 1958, in his best-selling book Culture and Society, Raymond Williams identified working class culture as a key issue in our own time. Why this happened and how this subject was thought about and acted upon is the focus of this book. Paul Long investigates a variety of projects and practices that were designed to describe validate reclaim rejuvenate or generate authentic working class culture as part of the re imagining of Britishness in the context of the post war settlement Detailed case studies cover the wartime cultural activities of CEMA the forerunner of the Arts Council the Folk Revival the impact of Richard Hoggart s The Uses of Literacy broadcasting and the radio work of Charles Parker Ewan MacColl and Peggy Seeger the roots of modern arts festivals in Arnold Wesker s Centre 42 project as well as the impact of progressive education on children s writing and the politics of the English language Only in the Common People The Aesthetics of Class in Post War Britain examines the assumptions idealism and prejudices behind these projects and the terms of class as the preoccupation of a generation This approach offers a historicisation of the broader ideas and debates that informed the development of the New Left and British social history and cultural theory offering an understanding of the rise of respect for the common man

The Making of Sporting Cultures John Hughson, 2013-09-13 The Making of Sporting Cultures presents an analysis of western sport by examining how the collective passions and feelings of people have contributed to the making of sport as a way of life The popularity of sport is so pronounced in some cases that we speak of certain sports as national pastimes Baseball in the United States soccer in Britain and cricket in the Caribbean are among the relevant examples discussed Rather than regarding the historical development of sport as the outcome of passive spectator reception this work is interested in how sporting cultures have been made and developed over time through the active engagement of its enthusiasts This is to study the history of sport not only from below but also from within as a means to understanding the deep relationship between sport and people within class contexts the middle class as well as the working class Contestation over the making of sport along axes of race gender and class are discussed where relevant A range of cultural writers and theorists are examined in regard to both how their writing can help us understand the making of sport and as to how sport might be located within an overall cultural context in different places and times The book will appeal to students and academics within humanities disciplines such as cultural studies history and sociology and to those in sport studies programmes interested in the historical cultural and social aspects of sport This book was published as a special issue of Sport in Society

Patriots Richard Weight, 2013-10-17 Who are the British today For nearly three hundred years British national identity was a unifying force in times of glory and despair It has now virtually disappeared In Patriots Richard Weight explores the decline of Britishness and the rise of powerful new identities in England Scotland Wales and Ireland Based on a wealth of original research it is scholarly in depth and scope yet never departs from a thoroughly readable and entertaining style Here are the themes of Orwell s The Lion and the Unicorn stretched over the subsequent sixty years and widened to embrace the whole United Kingdom Brimming with zest and feel this is politico cultural history at its best Peter Hennessy Wide ranging intelligent sensible and important Max Hastings Sunday Telegraph A marvellously rich ambitious and at times iconoclastic study by a young historian of how in the broadest sense national identity in Britain has changed in
