SKETCHES OF NEW SOUTH WALES. II.

MALE AND FEMALE NATIVES OF NEW SOUTH WALES.

THE ABORIGINAL NATIVES.

THE aboriginal natives of New South Wales and Van Diemen's Land have been generally considered as savages, equally unrestrained by laws, intellect, or morality; as a race of beings scarcely deserving the appellation of "human;" and as possessing no attractions for our curiosity, and no qualities to excite our interest; as, in short, a race of beings exhibiting the "nature" of mankind in its very lowest state of degradation, and incapable alike of civilization or improvement.

Of the few tribes that formerly inhabited Van Diemen's Land but little can be said, since very little is known of them. Our intercourse with them was never such as enabled us to form a correct judgment of their manners and customs, or to become acquainted with their peculiarities. They appear, however, to have differed in many respects from the New Hollanders (or natives of Australia), which circumstance, considering the proximity of the island to that vast range of territory, may be considered not unworthy of notice. Their stature was moderate, their colour almost black, and their hair jet black, but short and curly like that of the African; the spear was the principal weapon used by them, but their mode of throwing it differed from that of the New Hollander. They were altogether a more fierce, untamable, and revengeful race; they hated, and always avoided the presence of, a white man; and they were seldom seen in their occupations of hunting, but lurked in the recesses of the mountains, and in the thickest jungles of their forests. They were always

Forensic Approaches to Death, Disaster and Abuse Marc Oxenham,2008 During the last 100 years infant mortality rates have improved dramatically yet even in a developed country such as Australia the physical health of infants varies greatly despite advances in science and technology It has now become clear that emotional and physical development is affected by many different variables Not only must physical development and health support be adequate but the presence of factors such as good enough parenting and the absence of others such as substance abuse and domestic violence are now becoming better understood So how best to work with families where infants are at risk This is the substance of this book to understand how to achieve improved outcomes for infants growing up in situations of risk mainly in the area of the parents mental health but also in other related psychosocial circumstances that may impair parental functioning These include migration substance abuse and infant hospitalisation Throughout this book the authors examine the effects of adverse life circumstances on infant and family and in most cases also describe assessments and interventions Several chapters have been written by people personally affected by mental illness or mental illness of a family member This provides in depth and often poignant understanding of the perspective of those living with the effects of such illnesses and helps to expand our knowledge and skills to work with at risk families

The People That Never Were Christopher M. Hutton,Christopher Hutton,2025 In The People That Never Were Christopher M Hutton takes a fresh look at the term Aryan making the case that the concept was brought into being by western philology and Indology Hutton then takes the reader through the history of the concept beginning with colonial scholarship in India around 1800 and ending in the first decades of the twentieth century By exploring the complex history of the Aryan paradigm Hutton raises a challenging set of questions for the modern discipline of linguistics and illuminates the role of linguistic scholarship in political understandings of human diversity
