the English patent system and its relationship with technical change during the period between 1660 and 1800 when the patent system evolved from an instrument of royal patronage into one of commercial competition among the inventors and manufacturers of the Industrial Revolution It analyses the legal and political framework within which patenting took place and gives an account of the motivations and fortunes of patentees who obtained patents for a variety of purposes beyond the simple protection of an invention It includes the first in depth attempt to gauge the reliability of the patent statistics as a measure of inventive activity and technical change in the early part of the Industrial Revolution and suggests that the distribution of patents is a better guide to the advance of capitalism than to the centres of inventive activity It also queries the common assumption that the chief goal of inventors was to save labour and examines contemporary criticism of the patent system in the light of the changing conceptualisation of invention among natural scientists and political economists

Technology Assessment Janine Morgall,2010-05-05 How gender analysis should inform technology assessment

Technology Assessment Janine Morgall Traulsen,1993-10-14 How well does technology assessment TA relate to women's lives If women are underrepresented in the long term research and development process that leads to scientific advancements how can TA understand technology aimed at women It can't claim the author of Technology Assessment A Feminist Perspective A relative new field TA examines the social aspect of technology and provides information critical to

Technology and Industrial Progress G. N. Von Tunzelmann, 1995-01-01 What has dictated the rate and direction of technological change How central has it been to industrial progress How has it related to other determinants of economic growth and development In Technology and Industrial Progress Dr von Tunzelmann examines theoretical views on the nature and contribution of technology and the empirical evidence from the major industrializing countries from the 18th century to the present day The experiences of countries regarded in their time as the leaders of industrialization Britain in the 18th century the United States in the 19th century and Japan in the 20th century are critically compared by the author The following chapters study the transfer of each of these patterns of technology and growth to later industrializers such as continental Europe the Soviet Union and today s newly industrializing countries Adopting approaches drawn from evolutionary economics Dr von Tunzelmann links micro level phenomena relating to individual firms and technologies to macro level outcomes as reflected in economic growth and development This long awaited book is exceptional both in the range of countries surveyed and the breadth of topics analysed encompassing changes in production processes products and marketing management and finance

Technocities John Downey, Jim McGuigan, 1999-06-22 Information and communication technologies are said to be transforming urban life dramatically and bringing about rapid economic and cultural globalization This book explores the many fascinating and urgent issues involved by relating advanced theoretical debates to practical matters of communication with cultural policy It maps out a range of optimistic and pessimistic scenarios with special regard to various forms of inequality particularly class gender and geopolitical Topics discussed include urban planning virtual cities and actual cities economic and political policy and critical social analysis of current trends that are of momentous consequence The book concludes that it is necessary to bring together a number of diffe

Limited Livelihoods Sonya O. Rose, 2003-09-02 Integrating analytical tools from feminist theory cultural studies and sociology to illuminate detailed historical evidence Sonya Rose argues that gender was a central organizing principle of the nineteenth century industrial transformation in England She elaborates a cultural theory of gender that suggests why it is an inherent aspect of all social and economic relations Analysing employer strategies and state policies and the role of work in family life she demonstrates that neither industrial transformation nor class relations can be understood when reduced to gender neutral and abstract forces
