Social Work with People with Learning Difficulties Paul Williams, Michelle Evans, 2013-04-15 This book is part of the highly successful Transforming Social Work Practice series and is written specifically to support students on the social work degree Full of practical activities case studies and opportunities for students to critically reflect and explore theory and practice Current practice in the field was driven by the government White Paper Valuing People 2001 which declared some radical aims for services with people with learning difficulties Now somewhat compromised by the local authority austerity measures the goals set by Valuing People are nevertheless still important This third edition seeks to confirm and strengthen social work values and principles so that the progress and successes achieved by Valuing People can continue Case studies and activities draw out the key points and reinforce learning Summaries of contemporary research are included as are suggestions for further reading and coverage of current government guidance and policy documents By examining the varied roles that a social worker might undertake in this field the authors portray a positive picture of working with people with learning difficulties the achievements and satisfaction and the learning and understanding that can be gained They also highlight the need for recognition of vulnerability the risk of isolation oppression and abuse and the continuing political struggle to establish and protect the rights of the individual Paul Williams has over 40 years experience of working with people with learning difficulties He was a founder member of the organisation Values into Action which campaigned for rights inclusion and community based services for people with learning difficulties He is co author of books on self advocacy and anti oppressive practice A former lecturer in social work at the University of Reading he is now retired Michelle Evans has 14 years of practice in all areas of sensory need including Deaf deafness visual impairment and Deafblindness She has a first class honours degree in social work and has worked as a care manager in adult services and a social worker in children's services She has a particular interest in methods of social research which contribute to raising sensory awareness in social work care management She lectures social work students at London South Bank University and develops and delivers sensory awareness training to practitioners and managers

Understanding Differentiation Sylvia McNamara, Gill Moreton, 2016-07-22 In every classroom there are children of many abilities Managing the curriculum to meet the needs of all of these children can prove to be time consuming and difficult as both OFSTED inspection and teacher appraisal observations have shown This book looks at the many ways that teachers can differentiate work for children whilst keeping their work load manageable It gives lots of imaginative ideas for activities and worksheets whole lesson plans and many clearly described examples to help teachers to differentiate work more effectively in their own classrooms It is a resource book for initial Teacher Training and CPD Continuing Professional Development and for senior managers concerned with differentiation either before or after their OFSTED inspection Health and Well-being in Early Childhood Janet Rose, Louise Gilbert, Val Richards, 2015-11-18 The health and well being of children is integral to learning and development but what does it actually mean in practice This textbook draws on contemporary research on the brain and mind to provide an up to date overview of the central aspects of young children s health and well being a key component of the revised EYFS curriculum Critically engaging with a range of current debates coverage includes early influences such as relationships attachment attachment theory and nutrition the role of the brain in health and well being the enabling environment other issues affecting child development To support students with further reading reflective and critical thinking it employs case studies pointers for practice mindful moments discussion questions references to extra readings web links This current critical and comprehensive course text will provide a solid foundation for students and practitioners on a wide range of early childhood courses and empower them to support and nurture young children s health and well being Speaking, Reading, and Writing in Children With Language Learning Disabilities Katharine G.

Butler, Elaine R. Silliman, 2001-12-01 The ability to use language in more literate ways has always been a central outcome of education Today however being literate requires more than functional literacy the recognition of printed words as meaningful It requires the knowledge of how to use language as a tool for analyzing synthesizing and integrating what is heard or read in order to arrive at new interpretations Specialists in education cognitive psychology learning disabilities communication sciences and disorders and other fields have studied the language learning problems of school age children from their own perspectives All have tended to emphasize either the oral language component or phonemic awareness The major influence of phonemic awareness on learning to read and spell is well researched but it is not the only relevant focus for efforts in intervention and instruction An issue is that applications are usually the products of a single discipline or profession and few integrate an understanding of phonemic awareness with an understanding of the ways in which oral language comprehension and expression support reading writing and spelling Thus what we have learned about language remains disconnected from what we have learned about literacy interrelationships between language and literacy are not appreciated and educational services for students with language and learning disabilities are fragmented as a result This unique book a multidisciplinary collaboration bridges research practice and the development of new technologies It offers the first comprehensive and integrated overview of the multiple factors involved in language learning from late preschool through post high school that must be considered if problems are to be effectively addressed Practitioners researchers and students professionally concerned with these problems will find the book an invaluable resource

Learning foreign languages: experiences of persons with disabilities and special educational needs and their teachers Ewa

Domagala-Zysk, Jitka Sedláčková, Katarzyna Karpińska-Szaj, 2025-09-22 In many parts of the world it is not a person's native language but a foreign one which is used for education work or entertainment. This is true for many European countries whose inhabitants need to learn English as a foreign language if they want to participate in education or among diverse fields in the workforce. In other parts of the world it might be Spanish, Hindi, Mandarin, Chinese, Arabic or other languages which will be serving a similar role. This need for learning a second language is understood well in many educational programs including those for students with special educational needs. However to date there is not much research of the experiences of persons with diverse additional needs as learners of foreign languages. The most robust literature covers the field of additional language acquisition among Deaf and Hard of Hearing (DHH) people (cf. Domagala-Zysk, Podlowska-Moritz, 2021) and others. Goals, methods and forms of teaching are fairly well described and DHH students' needs have been documented extensively. The Encyclopedia of Learning Disabilities Carol Turkington, Joseph Harris, 2006. A complete reference to all types of learning disabilities.
