Sometimes The Soul Two Novellas Of Sicily:

Sometimes the Soul: Two Novellas of Sicily Gioia Timpanelli, 1998-08-17 Hauntingly beautiful fiction about two women solitude art and transformation For years Gioia Timpanelli has held audiences rapt with her retellings of ancient tales often appearing with Robert Bly James Hillman Joseph Campbell and Gary Snyder Here in fiction full of warmth and resonances characters we can't help but recognize prose and imagery that play on the strings of the soul Timpanelli draws on her deep knowledge of these old stories and their wisdoms to create a new and refreshing kind of storytelling with hints of both Italo Calvino and Angela Carter In A Knot of Tears a woman's locked up life is transformed by a parrot who tells tales her story becomes a subtle and surprising meditation on the necessity of being true to oneself and others In Rusina Not Quite in Love a strange and lovely retelling of the story of the Beauty and the Beast a young woman escapes family and society especially the grasp of her superficial and beastly sisters to find consolation and beauty in nature and its muse In each case women of very different backgrounds one aristocratic one impoverished find solitary spaces from which they can emerge as artists and shapers of their own destinies With a sense of character unusual in contemporary fiction not mere personality but moral character and a gentle lyric touch Timpanelli blends the seeming simplicity of folktale with a richly textured understanding of human nature With great integrity and affection for language her work teaches about love and solitude honesty and art

Multiethnic Literature and Canon Debates Mary Jo Bona, Irma

Maini, 2012-02-16 This groundbreaking collection reinvigorates the debate over the inclusion of multiethnic literature in the American literary canon. While multiethnic literature has earned a place in the curriculum on many large campuses, it is still a controversial topic at many others, as recent campus and corporate revivals of The Great Books attest. Many still perceive multiethnic literature as being governed by ideological and political issues, perpetuating a false distinction between highbrow literary texts and multiethnic works. Through historical overviews and textual analyses, the contributors not only argue for the aesthetic validity of multiethnic literature but also examine the innovative ways in which multiethnic literature is taught and critiqued. The following questions are also addressed: Who and what determines literary value? What role do scholars, students, the reading public, book awards, and/or publishers play in affirming literary value? Taken together, these essays underscore the necessity for maintaining vibrant conversations about the place of multiethnic literature both inside and outside the academy.
