

An aerial photograph of a beach at sunset or sunrise. The ocean waves are breaking onto the shore, creating white foam. The sand is a warm, golden-brown color. The sky is not visible, but the lighting suggests a low sun. The text is overlaid on the right side of the image.

But somewhere, sometime, someone must say, 'Today I will not seek revenge.' Someone has to say, 'We will stop' and mean it, or the bloodshed will go on and on, endless, until we destroy the entire human race.

McLeod-Harrison,2017-07-31 If humans are not capable of immortality then eschatological doctrines of heaven and hell make little sense On that Christians agree But not all Christians agree on whether humans are essentially immortal Some hold that the early church was right to borrow from the ancient Greek philosophers and to bring their sense of immortality to bear on the interpretation of biblical passages about the afterlife Others however suggest that we are inherently mortal and only conditionally immortal This latter view is usually associated with an annihilationist interpretation of the doctrine of hell and a rejection of eternal torment In a philosophical analysis and argument McLeod Harrison proposes that humans are indeed immortal but not essentially so But neither are we immortal accidentally or conditionally Instead immortality is an enduring property a property we cannot lose once created McLeod Harrison carefully delineates the sense of immortality he defends and provides a broadly Christian philosophical argument for it The argument if correct leaves the recent suggestion that the unredeemed are annihilated on unsteady metaphysical feet However McLeod Harrison does not defend eternal conscious punishment for the unredeemed but suggests some ways to think about the possibility of a universal salvation
