The Ethnopoetics of Space and Transformation Stuart C. Aitken, 2016-02-17 Change is inevitable we are told A job is lost a couple falls in love children leave home an addict joins Narcotics Anonymous two nations go to war a family member's health deteriorates a baby is born a universal health care bill is voted into law Life comprises events over which we have considerable partial or little or no control The distance between the event and our daily lives suggests a quirky spatial politics Our lives move forward depending upon how events play out in concert with our reactions to them Drawing on nearly three decades of geographic projects that involve ethnographies and interviews with and stories about young people in North and South American Europe and Asia and using the innovative technique of ethnopoetry Aitken examines key life changing events to look at the interconnections between space politics change and emotions Analysing the intricate spatial complexities of these events he explores the emotions that undergird the ways change takes place and the perplexing spatial politics that almost always accompany transformations Aitken positions young people as effective agents of change without romanticizing their political involvement as fantasy and unrealistic dreaming Going further he suggests that it is the emotional palpability of youth engagement and activism that makes it so potent and productive Pulling on the spatial theories of de Certeau Deleuze Massey Agamben Ranci re Zizek and Grosz amongst others Aitken argues that spaces are transformative to the degree that they open the political and he highlights the complexly interwoven political economic social and cultural practices that simultaneously embed and embolden people in places If we think of spaces as events and events encourage change then spaces and people become other through complex relations Taking poetry to be an emotive construction of language Aitken re visualizes contours and arranges people's words and gestures to

The Sacralization of Space and Behavior in the Early Modern World Jennifer Mara DeSilva, 2016-03-09 In the Early Modern period as both reformed and Catholic churches strove to articulate orthodox belief and conduct through texts sermons rituals and images communities grappled frequently with the connection between sacred space and behavior The Sacralization of Space and Behavior in the Early Modern World explores individual and community involvement in the approbation reconfiguration and regulation of sacred spaces and the behavior both animal and human within them The individual's understanding of sacred space and consequently the behavior appropriate within it depended on local need group dynamics and the dissemination of normative expectations While these expectations were defined in a growing body of confessionalizing literature locally and internationally traditional clerical authorities found their decisions contested circumvented or elaborated in order to make room for other stakeholders activities and needs To clearly reveal the efforts of early modern groups to negotiate authority and the transformation of behavior with sacred space this collection presents examples that allow the deconstruction of these tensions and the exploration of the resulting campaigns within sacred space Based on new archival research the eleven chapters in this collection examine diverse aspects of the campaigns to transform Christian behavior within a variety of types of sacred space and through a spectrum of media These essays give voice to the arguments exhortations and accusations that surrounded the activities taking place in early modern sacred space and reveal much about how people made sense of these transformations
