Carlson, A. Egeland, 2002-06-30 The auroral emissions in the upper atmosphere of the polar regions of the Earth are evidence of the capture of energetic particles from the Sun streaming by the Earth as the solar wind These auroral emissions then are a window to outer space and can provide us with valuable information about electrodynamic coupling processes between the solar wind and the Earth's ionosphere and upper atmosphere Studying the physics of these phenomena extends our understanding of our plasma universe Ground based remote sensing techniques able to monitor continuously the variations in the signatures of aurorae in combination with in situ satellite and rocket measurements promise to advance dramatically our understanding of the physical processes taking place at the interface of the atmospheres of the Earth and the Sun Decoding their complexity brings us closer to reliable prediction of communication environments especially at high latitudes This understanding in turn will help us resolve problems of communication and navigation across polar regions The Navigator , 1969 Construction and Operation of an Ionospheric Research Facility for the High Frequency Active Auroral Research Program (HAARP) , 1993 The Upper Atmosphere Walter Dieminger, Gerd K. Hartmann, Reinhart Leitinger, 2012-12-06 Especially due to the increasing environmental problems there is a need to collect as many data as possible in the upper atmosphere This book serves as a general multidisciplinary guide and introduction for a more effective use of the large amount of now available data from the Earth's atmosphere It also shows the problems of the use of large amounts of time series data for basic science as well as for environmental monitoring and the related information systems The book is aimed for scientists and students interested in the Earth's atmosphere which is vital for the understanding of environmental changes in the global system Earth Putting the "I" in IHY Barbara J.
