The Differentiation Of Cells:

The Differentiation of Cells Norman Maclean, 1977 New Cell Differentiation Research Topics Hitoshi Saitama, 2007 This new book presents research developments from around the globe in the field of cellular differentiation which is a concept from developmental biology describing the process by which cells acquire a type The morphology of a cell may change dramatically during differentiation but the genetic material remains the same with few exceptions A cell that is able to differentiate into many cell types is known as pluripotent These cells are called stem cells in animals and meristematic cells in higher plants A cell that is able to differentiate into all cell types is known as totipotent In mammals only the zygote and early embryonic cells are totipotent while in plants many differentiated cells can become totipotent with simple laboratory techniques Mechanisms of Differentiation Paul B. Fisher, 1990-08-27 Significant recent advances in cell culture technology now permit a detailed biochemical and molecular analysis of differentiation in both normal and tumor cells These studies are important in attempting to understand the complex factors involved in normal growth and development as well as the abnormalities associated with carcinogenesis Mechanisms of Differentiation Volumes I and II is comprised of review chapters addressing various topics of current interest in this important area of research Topics discussed include genes controlling differentiation changes in gene expression during differentiation induction of differentiation induction of differentiation as a mode of action of chemotherapeutic agents and the effect of cell shape growth factors and differentiation modulating agents on the differentiated cell phenotype Mechanisms of Differentiation is valuable to researchers involved in differentiation and development carcinogenesis cell biology chemotherapy and immunology

Transdifferentiation T. S. Okada, 1991 The term transdifferentiation is used to describe metamorphosis of one fully developed cell type into another There has been much scepticism about the validity of this concept This book examines the experimental evidence and aims to settle the dispute Cell Differentiation Lutz Nover, M. Luckner, B. Parthier, 1982-02 Three years have elapsed since the publication of the first edition of this book in German The continued interest of our readers and the rapid progress of our knowledge in many fields necessitates a thoroughly revised and somewhat enlarged new edition Cell differentiation is a prerequisite of life It is defined as the process leading to the qualitatively and quantitatively selective realization of distinct parts of a given genetic material Cell differentiation comprises five main aspects 1 signal reception and transformation 2 selective rearrangements of the genetic material 3 differential gene expression 4 organization of gene expression programs and 5 intercellular coordination of cell differentiation within the developmental programs of multicellular organisms Despite the bewildering multiplicity of its results i.e. the differentiated phenotypes of cells there are apparently fundamental similarities with respect to the molecular mechanisms of the process itself These mechanisms constitute the central subject of this book Differentiation of Embryonic Stem Cells, 2003-12-18 This volume covers all aspects of embryonic stem cell differentiation including mouse embryonic stem cells mouse embryonic germ cells monkey and human embryonic stem cells and gene discovery Early commitment steps and generation of chimeric mice Differentiation to mesoderm derivatives Gene discovery by manipulation of mouse embryonic stem cells

Differentiation and Immunology Katherine Brehme Warren, 2014-07-14 Differentiation and Immunology is a collection of papers that deals with molecular specificity the link between immunology and differentiation One paper reviews the status of regulation in bacteria or viruses and extends the results to animal cells The paper also investigates a single aspect of the control of immunoglobulin through the use of plasmacytomas Another paper discusses the role of macrophages in the minimum theory to possibly account for the energetics of the reaction with receptors or to the frequency of antigen sensitive cells Some papers investigate the immunogenic function of macrophages the transition from monocyte to macrophage the factors influencing the formation of macrophage lysosomes and the origin of macrophage lysosomes Other papers also discuss the immune response as a model system for studies on cellular differentiation as well as the differentiation for collagen synthesis in cultured cells One paper suggests that in differentiation the changes that can occur in the properties of protozoan cells perpetuated for long periods are reversible and can be a means for survival as every cell line is also capable of being a germ line This collection can prove valuable to bio chemists cellular biologists micro biologists developmental biologists and scientists involved in immunology research

Cell Cycle and Cell Differentiation J. Reinert, H. Holtzer, 2013-06-29 It is instructive to compare the response of biologists to the two themes that comprise the title of this volume The concept of the cell cycle in contra distinction to cell division is a relatively recent one Nevertheless biologists of all persuasions appreciate and readily agree on the central problems in this area Issues ranging from mechanisms that initiate and integrate the synthesis of chromosomal proteins and DNA during S phase of mitosis to the manner in which assembly of microtubules and their interactions lead to the segregation of metaphase chromosomes are readily followed by botanists and zoologists as well as by cell and molecular biologists These problems are crisp and well defined The current state of cell differentiation stands in sharp contrast This one of the oldest problems in experimental biology almost defies definition today The difficulties arise not only from a lack of pertinent information on the regulatory mechanisms but also from conflicting basic concepts in this field One of the ways in which this situation might be improved would be to find a broader experimental basis including a better understanding of the relationship between the cell cycle and cell differentiation

The Differentiation of Haemopoietic Stem Cells C. D. R. Dunn, 1971 Cell Interactions in Differentiation Marketta Karkinen-Jaaskelainen, 2012-12-02 Cell Interactions in Differentiation is a collection of papers presented at the Sixth Sigrid Juselius Foundation Symposium held in Helsinki Finland in August 1976 Contributors discuss cell interactions during differentiation particularly referring to the problem of embryonic induction They also consider how a cell becomes adjusted to the synchronized development of an entire multicellular organism so as to express its genetic information at a strictly controlled time and place This volume is organized into five sections encompassing 30 chapters and begins with an overview of embryonic cells and their two fundamental properties Cells are not necessarily predetermined and can be experimentally diverted from their normal developmental pathway and those within an embryonic organism require extrinsic messages to express their developmental capacities The next chapters focus on early determinative events in embryogenesis touching on topics such as the genetic aspects of cell type determination interactions between embryonic cells during the early development of the mouse and the differentiation of teratocarcinoma stem cells in vitro The reader is then introduced to positional information and morphogenetic signals the biological specificity of morphogenetic tissue interactions and the molecular mechanisms underlying cell contact interactions The remaining chapters explore some of the most important conceptual and methodological approaches to the problems of cell cell recognition and the integration of cells into multicellular systems This book will be of interest to scientists and investigators in developmental biology and related fields
