The Early Works Of The Unknown Poetry And Songs:

The Making of Early Chinese Classical Poetry Stephen Owen, 2020-05-11 Over the centuries early Chinese classical poetry became embedded in a chronological account with great cultural resonance and came to be transmitted in versions accepted as authoritative But modern scholarship has questioned components of the account and cast doubt on the accuracy of received texts The result has destabilized the study of early Chinese poetry This study adopts a double approach to the poetry composed between the end of the first century B C E and the third century C E First it examines extant material from this period synchronically as if it were not historically arranged with some poems attached to authors and some not By setting aside putative differences of author and genre Stephen Owen argues we can see that this was one poetry created from a shared poetic repertoire and compositional practices Second it considers how the scholars of the late fifth and early sixth centuries selected this material and reshaped it to produce the standard account of classical poetry As Owen shows early poetry comes to us through reproduction reproduction by those who knew the poem and transmitted it by musicians who performed it and by scribes and anthologists all of whom changed texts to suit their needs Vaughan Williams Essays Byron Adams, 2017-07-05 Serious scholarship on the music of Ralph Vaughan Williams is currently enjoying a lively revival after a period of relative quiescence and is only beginning to address the enduring affection of concert audiences for his music The essays that comprise this volume extend the study of Vaughan Williams s music in new directions that will be of interest to scholars performers and listeners alike This volume contains the work of eleven North American scholars who have been recipients of the Ralph Vaughan Williams Fellowship based at the composer s own school Charterhouse which was created and has been supported by the Carthusian Trust since 1985 This wide ranging and detailed collection of essays covers the spectrum of genres in which Vaughan Williams wrote including dance symphony opera song hymnody and film music The contributors also employ a range of analytical and historical methods of investigation to illuminate aspects of Vaughan Williams s compositional techniques and influences musical literary and visual The Men of the Time ... contributed to its formation The book demonstrates how recreational song such as the English madrigal confronted assumptions about reality and representation and the role of dialogue in cultural production and other ideas linked to changes in how knowledge was built Focusing on music by John Dowland Martin Peerson Thomas Weelkes and William Byrd this study revises historiography by reflecting on the experience of music and how music contributed to the way early modern awareness was shaped
