Wapner,2003

WHO recommendations on antenatal corticosteroids for improving preterm birth outcomes World Health Organization,2022-09-30 In 2021 the Executive Guideline Steering Group GSG for the World Health Organization WHO maternal and perinatal health recommendations prioritized updating the then current recommendations on the use of antenatal corticosteroids as published in the WHO recommendations on interventions to improve preterm birth outcomes This decision was based on new evidence on the subject that had become available The recommendations in this document thus supersedes the previous WHO recommendations on the use of antenatal corticosteroids as published in the 2015 guidelines WHO recommendations on interventions to improve preterm birth outcomes Antenatal Corticosteroid Therapy for Fetal Maturation in Preterm Labor Nelson Mark Braslow,1997 Consequences of Antenatal Corticosteroid Treatment on the Developing Immune System Ines Christina Diepenbruck,2015 Antenatal Corticosteroids Given to Women Prior to Birth to Improve Fetal, Infant, Child and Adult Health New Zealand and Australian Antenatal Corticosteroids Clinical Practice Guidelines Panel,2015 Effect of Corticosteroids for Fetal Maturation on Perinatal Outcomes National Institutes of Health. NIH.,1994 The consensus panel concluded that antenatal corticosteroid therapy for fetal maturation reduces mortality respiratory distress syndrome and intraventricular hemorrhage in preterm infants These benefits extend to a broad range of gestational ages 24 34 weeks and are not limited by gender or race Although the beneficial effects of corticosteroids are greatest more than 24 hours after beginning treatment treatment less than 24 hours in duration may also improve outcomes

The benefits of antenatal corticosteroids are additive to those derived from surfactant therapy. In the presence of preterm premature rupture of the membranes, antenatal corticosteroid therapy reduces the frequency of respiratory distress syndrome, intraventricular hemorrhage, and neonatal death, although to a lesser extent than with intact membranes. Whether this therapy increases either neonatal or maternal infection is unclear. However, the risk of intraventricular hemorrhage and death from prematurity is greater than the risk from infection.
