Socialist Propaganda In The Twentieth Century British Novel:

Socialist Propaganda in the Twentieth-century British Novel David Smith, 1978 British Socialists and the Politics of Popular Culture, 1884-1914 Chris Waters, 1990 The British social movement emerged at the same time that working class culture was being transformed by new forms of commercial entertainment This work explores the relationship between the socialist movement and late Victorian working class culture Class Matters Pat Mahony, Christine Zmroczek, 2005-08-19 This text focuses on the theory of class as it relates to women It debates questions such as how do women define themselves in terms of social class and why is definition important or not what part does education play in our understanding of class and how does class affect relationships Constructions of 'the Jew' in English Literature and Society Bryan Cheyette, 1995-10-26 Combining cultural theory discourse analysis and new historicism with readings of the works of major contemporary authors this study concludes that the Jew is characterized unstereotypically as the embodiment of uncertainty within English literature and society London's Burning Antony Taylor, 2012-01-26 From the early years of the nineteenth century cultural pessimists imagined in fiction the political forces that might bring about the destruction of London Periods of popular protest or radicalism have generated novels that consider the methods insurgents might use to terrorise the metropolis There has been a tendency to dismiss such writings as the lurid imaginings of pulp novelists but this book re evaluates the contribution of popular fiction to the construction of the terrorist threat It analyses the high points for the production of such works and locates them in their cultural and historical context From the 1840s when a fear of Chartist insurgency was paramount in the minds of authors it moves through the anarchist thrillers of the 1890s considers writers fears about Bolshevik revolution in the East End of the 1920s and 1930s explores fears of Fascism in the inter war years and assesses the concerns with underground counter culture that feature in the thriller literature of the 1970s It concludes with a re evaluation of the metropolitan background to the figure of the Islamist terrorist Home in British Working-Class Fiction Nicola Wilson, 2016-03-09 Home in British Working Class Fiction offers a fresh take on British working class writing that turns away from a masculinist work based understanding of class in favour of home gender domestic labour and the family kitchen As Nicola Wilson shows the history of the British working classes has often been written from the outside with observers looking into the world of the inhabitants Here Wilson engages with the long cultural history of this gaze and asks how home is represented in the writing of authors who come from a working class background Her book explores the depiction of home as a key emotional and material site in working class writing from the Edwardian period through to the early 1990s Wilson presents new readings of classic texts including The Ragged Trousered Philanthropists Love on the Dole and Saturday Night and Sunday Morning analyzing them alongside works by authors including James Hanley Walter Brierley Lewis Grassie Gibbon Buchi Emecheta Pat Barker James Kelman and the rediscovered ex mill girl novelist Ethel Carnie Holdsworth Wilson s broad understanding of working class writing allows her to incorporate figures typically ignored in this context as she demonstrates the importance of home's role in the making and expression of class feeling and identity
