Karl S. Zimmerer

Societies And Nature In The Sahel Rethinking Environmental Degradation:

The End of Desertification? Roy H. Behnke, Michael Mortimore, 2016-04-12 The question in the title of this book draws attention to the shortcomings of a concept that has become a political tool of global importance even as the scientific basis for its use grows weaker The concept of desertification it can be argued has ceased to be analytically useful and distorts our understanding of social environmental systems and their resiliency particularly in poor countries with variable rainfall and persistent poverty For better policy and governance we need to reconsider the scientific justification for international attempts to combat desertification Our exploration of these issues begins in the Sahel of West Africa where a series of severe droughts at the end of the 20th century led to the global institutionalization of the idea of desertification It now seems incontrovertible that these droughts were not caused primarily by local land use mismanagement effectively terminating a long standing policy and scientific debate There is now an opportunity to treat this episode as an object lesson in the relationship between science the formation of public opinion and international policy making Looking beyond the Sahel the chapters in this book provide case studies from around the world that examine the use and relevance of the desertification concept Despite an increasingly sophisticated understanding of dryland environments and societies the uses now being made of the desertification concept in parts of Asia exhibit many of the shortcomings of earlier work done in Africa It took scientists more than three decades to transform a perceived desertification crisis in the Sahel into a non event This book is an effort to critically examine that experience and accelerate the learning process in other parts of the world Uncommon Ground: Rethinking the Human Place in Nature William Cronon, 1996-10 This collection of essays historicizes the divorce of the natural from the human and shows that nature is a human construction arguing that what we have constructed we can reconstruct Globalization and New Geographies of Conservation Karl S. Zimmerer, 2006-09-15 Examining the geographical dimensions of environmental management and conservation activities implemented on landscapes worldwide Globalization and New Geographies of Conservation creates a new framework and collects original case studies to explore recent developments in the interaction of humans and their environment Globalization and New Geographies of Conservation makes four important arguments about the recent coupling of conservation and globalization that is reshaping the place of nature in human environmental change First it has led to an unprecedented number of spatial arrangements whose environmental management goals and prescribed activities vary along a spectrum from strict biodiversity protection to sustainable utilization involving agriculture food production and extractive activities Conservation and globalization are also leading by necessity to new scales of management in these activities that rely on environmental science thus shifting the spatial patterning of humans and the environment This interaction results as well in the unprecedented importance of boundaries and borders transnational border issues pose both opportunities and threats to global conservation proposed by organizations and institutions that are themselves international Lastly Globalization and New Geographies of Conservation argues that the local level has been integral to globalization while the regional level is often eclipsed at the peril of the successful implementation of conservation and management programs Bridging the gap between geography and life science Globalization and New Geographies of Conservation will appeal to a broad range of students of the environment conservation planning biodiversity management and development and globalization studies Biological Resources and Migration Dietrich Werner,2004-06-09 Migration of humans and animals plants and even microbes is a ubiquitous global phenomenon This book covers all forms of migration plant microbial animal or human and their mutual impact in detail The contributions in this book are the result of an innovative International Conference and OECD Workshop aimed at triggering off the interdisciplinary dialogue between natural scientists and socioeconomists Inside Poverty and Development in Africa Marcel Rutten,André Leliveld,Dick Foeken,2008-10-15 When discussing development issues in Africa it is not sufficient to simply stress the ubiquity of failure malnutrition disease predatory states and war one also has to recognize that important aspects in the lives of millions of ordinary people have been transformed over the last five decades The contributions in this book are rooted in extensive empirical research at local regional and or national level in different African countries Chad Ethiopia Kenya Lesotho South Africa and Uganda while some take a pan African view All however offer insight from different analytical perspectives into the heterogeneity of poverty and development processes in Sub Saharan Africa and confront the ideas concepts and assumptions that lie behind pro poor policies The volume also encourages policy makers to choose realistic policy prescriptions in an attempt to move people out of poverty Parks and People in Postcolonial Societies M. Ramutsindela,2004-09-24 Against the background of colonial and postcolonial experiences this volume shows that power relations and stereotypes embedded in the original Western idea of a national park are a continuing reality of contemporary national and transnational parks The volume seeks to dispel the myth that colonial beliefs and practices in protected areas have ended with the introduction of new nature conservation policies and practices It explores this continuity against the backdrop of the development of the national park idea in the West and its trajectories in colonial and postcolonial societies particularly southern Africa This volume analyses the dynamic relations between people and national parks and assesses these in southern Africa against broader experiences in postcolonial societies It draws examples from a broad range of situations and places It reinserts issues of prejudices into contemporary national park systems and accounts for continuities and interruptions in national parks ideals in different contexts Its interpretation of material transcends the North South divide This volume is accessible to readers from different academic backgrounds It is of special interest to academics policymakers and Non Governmental Organisations This book can also be used as prescribed or reference material in courses taught at university Rethinking Natural Resource Degradation in Sub-Saharan Africa: Country overviews Tom Slaymaker,R. Blench,2002 Towards Rethinking Politics, Policy and Polity in the Anthropocene Hans Günter Brauch,2025-02-24 Humankind faces two anthropogenic threats to its survival that are closely linked The first is the end of the Holocene and the start of the Anthropocene which was marked by the test of a nuclear bomb on 16 July 1945 In the prevailing peace and security narrative nuclear weapons and the other country bloc or alliance pose a perceived threat to humankind s survival In the Anthropocene narrative we are the threat through our way of life and the burning of fossil fuels The start of the Anthropocene coincides with a change in the international order with the setting up of the UN and the Bretton Woods Institutions Three stages of this order are distinguished the Cold War bipolarity the post Cold War era unipolarity and the end of the rule based global liberal order multipolarity on 24 February 2022 In this book ten multidisciplinary perspectives discuss complexity Anthropocene geopolitics peace and security discourses and the debate on the Anthropocene planetary boundaries complex crises and integrative geography in the Anthropocene governance and politics and the Patriacene and gender Both existential threats for humankind are illustrated by cover photos of the first nuclear weapons test on 16 July 1945 and by Category 5 Hurricane Otis an extreme weather event impacting on Acapulco in Mexico on 25 October 2023 The Anthropocene as a new epoch of Earth history coincides in 1945 with a change in the international order In the security and peace narrative the other and nuclear weapons pose an existential threat in the Anthropocene narrative This dual existential change requires a rethinking of politics policy and polity In the social sciences the Anthropocene is being discussed from multidisciplinary perspectives geography political science and peace security and gender studies This is an open access publication

Green Development Bill Adams, 2019-12-05 The concept of sustainability lies at the core of the challenge of environment and development and the way governments business and environmental groups respond to it Green Development provides a clear and coherent analysis of sustainable development in both theory and practice Green Development explores the origins and evolution of mainstream thinking about sustainable development and offers a critique of the ideas behind them It draws a link between theory and practice by discussing the nature of the environmental degradation and the impacts of development It argues that ultimately green development has to be about political economy about the distribution of power and not about environmental quality Its focus is strongly on the developing world The fourth edition retains the broad structure of previous editions but has been updated to reflect advances in ideas and changes in international policy Greater attention has been given to the political ecology of development market based and neoliberal environmentalism and degrowth This fully revised edition discusses the origins of thinking about sustainability and sustainable development and its evolution to the present day the ideas that dominate mainstream sustainable development including natural capital the green economy market environmentalism and ecological modernisation critiques of mainstream ideas and of neoliberal framings of sustainability and alternative ideas about sustainability that challenge business as usual thinking such as arguments about limits to growth and calls for degrowth the dilemmas of sustainability in the context of forests desertification food and farming biodiversity conservation and dam construction the challenge of policy choices about sustainability particularly between reformist and radical responses to the contemporary global dilemmas Green Development offers clear insights into the challenges of environmental sustainability and social and economic development It is unique in offering a synthesis of theoretical ideas on sustainability and in its coverage of the extensive literature on environment and development around the world The book has proved its value to generations of students as an authoritative thought provoking and readable guide to the field of sustainable development Forthcoming Books Rose Arny,1997-04
