Matthew Gallman, 2003-06-19 Between 1845 and 1855 2 million Irish men and women fled their famine ravaged homeland many to settle in large British and American cities that were already wrestling with a complex array of urban problems In this innovative work of comparative urban history Matthew Gallman looks at how two cities Philadelphia and Liverpool met the challenges raised by the influx of immigrants Gallman examines how citizens and policymakers in Philadelphia and Liverpool dealt with such issues as poverty disease poor sanitation crime sectarian conflict and juvenile delinquency By considering how two cities of comparable population and dimensions responded to similar challenges he sheds new light on familiar questions about distinctive national characteristics without resorting to claims of American exceptionalism In this critical era of urban development English and American cities often evolved in analogous ways Gallman notes But certain crucial differences in location material conditions governmental structures and voluntaristic traditions for example inspired varying approaches to urban problem solving on either side of the Atlantic
