The Power of Productivity William W. Lewis, 2004      Private and Public Sector Collaboration in Guam's Tourism Industry: Is Guam Prepared for the Future? Fred R. Schumann, 2008-01-06

The topic of tourism development has been explored by a number of scholars and increasingly over the past decade more literature has become available on tourism development on small islands. For many of the small island territories or nations they share a number of major issues in the area of tourism. These include vast distances from source markets, foreign investment and the resulting leakage of revenue, over dependence on tourism, mono structured economy, dependence on imports and an overburdened infrastructure, just to name a few. G ssling 2003, Harrison 2004, McElroy 2006. Most island destinations rely on stakeholders from not only a single sector but from both private and public sectors to tackle these issues. Buhalis 1999. As a tourism dependent economy, Guam receives at least sixty percent of its governmental revenues from tourism. Japanese visitors had made up over 80 percent of Guam's visitor arrivals in earlier years but numbers started to drop in recent years due to a number of reasons such as natural disasters, world events as well as stiffer competition from similar resort destinations. Still the market remains the largest source of visitors for Guam with South Korea coming in a distant second in ranking making up approximately 12 percent of Guam's visitor arrivals. As background information to illustrate the importance of public and private sector collaboration efforts on Guam, this research examines some of the changes occurring in Japanese overseas travel. It also reviews how tourist industry stakeholders in a nearby destination like Guam can adopt strategies to meet the changing expectations of this important market. The primary research of this thesis involves the analysis of qualitative data generated from in depth interviewing in examining the issue of collaboration between the private and public sectors as a method for assisting Guam's tourism industry to prepare for the future. This is followed by multiple case research. Yin 1994 that investigates strategies used in destinations to enhance tourist experiences through attractions. The SWOT Analysis is also utilized as an example of a tool to assist stakeholders in understanding the environment of the present to prepare strategies for the future.

Risk Intelligence David Apgar, 2006-07-06. Too many executives think risk management is strictly for technical specialists. In Risk Intelligence: Learning to Manage What We Don't Know, David Apgar challenges this misconception. The author explains how to raise the quality of your risk analysis, thus enhancing your risk IQ by applying four simple rules:

1. Recognize which risks are learnable and reduce their uncertainty by discovering more about them.
2. Identify risks you can learn about the fastest. The higher your learning speed, the more a project is worth pursuing.
3. Take on risky projects one at a time, learning about the risks underlying each before moving to the next.
4. Build networks of business partners, suppliers, and customers who can collectively manage new ventures' risks by playing distinct roles.

The book provides two tools for improving your risk IQ: the Risk Intelligence Audit and the Risk Scorecard, and concludes with a 10 step action plan for systematically raising your managerial and organizational risk IQ. Your reward: Smarter business decisions over time.

Entrepreneurship in the Informal Sector Colin C. Williams, 2017-09-22 How many businesses start ups conduct some or all of their trade off the books And how many enterprises continue to do some of their work off the books once they are more established What should be done about them Should governments adopt ever more punitive measures to eradicate them Or should we recognise this hidden enterprise culture and attempt to harness it If so how can this be done What measures can be taken to ensure that businesses start up in a proper manner And what can be done to help those enterprises and entrepreneurs currently working off the books to legitimise their businesses The aim of this book is to advance a new way of answering these questions Drawing inspiration from institutional theory informal sector entrepreneurship is explained as resulting from the asymmetry between the codified laws and regulations of a society s formal institutions and the norms values and beliefs that comprise a society s informal institutions The argument is that if the norms values and beliefs of entrepreneurs i e their individual morality were wholly aligned with the codified laws and regulations i e state morality there would be no informal sector entrepreneurship However because the individual morality of entrepreneurs differs from state morality such as due to their lack of trust in government and the rule of law the result is the prevalence of informal sector entrepreneurship The greater the degree of institutional asymmetry the higher is the propensity to engage in informal sector entrepreneurship This book provides evidence to show that this is the case both at the individual and country level and then discusses how this can be overcome

Competition Law in Developing Countries Thomas K. Cheng, 2020-05-27 This book brings together perspectives of development economics and law to tackle the relationship between competition law enforcement and economic development It addresses the question of whether and how competition law enforcement helps to promote economic growth and development This question is highly pertinent for developing countries largely because many developing countries have only adopted competition law in recent years about thirty jurisdictions had in place a competition law in the early 1980s and there are now more than 130 competition law regimes across the world of which many are developing countries The book proposes a customized approach to competition law enforcement for developing countries set against the background of the academic and policy debate concerning convergence of competition law The implicit premise of convergence is that there may exist one or a few correct approaches to competition law enforcement which in most cases emanate from developed jurisdictions that are applicable to all This book rejects this assumption and argues that developing countries ought to tailor competition law enforcement to their own economic and political circumstances In particular it suggests how competition law enforcement can better incorporate development concerns without causing undue dilution of its traditional focus on protecting consumer welfare It proposes ways in which approaches to competition law enforcement need to be adjusted to reflect the special economic characteristics of developing country economies and the more limited enforcement capacity of developing country competition authorities Finally it also addresses the long running debate concerning the desirability and viability of industrial policy for developing countries The author would like to acknowledge the Research Grants Council of Hong Kong for its generous support The work in this book was fully supported by a grant from the Research Grants Council of Hong Kong Project No HKU 742412H Growth without Development Rubén

Berríos,2018-11-26 This book examines how some growing countries are experiencing economic development while others are falling behind It addresses the fundamental issues of development strategies by examining country specific policies that have resulted in success or failure The author focuses on Peru and makes comparisons with Chile and South Korea exploring the question of why the latter two countries have been more successful while Peru has lagged behind despite bountiful natural resources and the potential to develop into a robust economy The central question is to understand why some countries achieve economic development while others face enormous challenges and fail to do so New horizons.
