Arresting Cinema Karen Fang,2017-01-11 When Ridley Scott envisioned Blade Runner's set as Hong Kong on a bad day he nodded to the city's overcrowding as well as its widespread use of surveillance But while Scott brought Hong Kong and surveillance into the global film repertoire the city's own cinema has remained outside of the global surveillance discussion In Arresting Cinema Karen Fang delivers a unifying account of Hong Kong cinema that draws upon its renowned crime films and other unique genres to demonstrate Hong Kong's view of surveillance She argues that Hong Kong's films display a tolerance of and even opportunism towards the soft cage of constant observation unlike the fearful view prevalent in the West However many surveillance cinema studies focus solely on European and Hollywood films discounting other artistic traditions and industrial circumstances Hong Kong's films show a more crowded increasingly economically stratified and postnational world that nevertheless offers an aura of hopeful futurity Only by exploring Hong Kong surveillance film can we begin to shape a truly global understanding of Hitchcock's rear window ethics

Vv., 2015-03-11T00:00:00+01:00 As Jacques Derrida wrote in 1995 while considering Archive Fever nothing is less reliable or less clear today than the word archive Nevertheless the historic cultural dimension of the contemporary discursive practices in cinema and art develops in the semantic openendedness of the term in the repositioning of the idea of archive The individual disciplines involved in one such field history of cinema and art theory of cinema and art aesthetics semiotics philology etc begin to open up to questioning the notion of archive even in negative in other words what after Michel Foucault the archive is not or does not seem to be The archive is not the library of libraries or encyclopedia it is not memory it is not museum it is not a database In recent years the attention focused on such ideas has not so much highlighted the impulses turns and specific forms of art art archive as it has revealed in many ways how the archive concerns us in the interrelation of aesthetic political ethical and legal levels among various disciplinary fields
