Socialist Development And Public Investment In Tanzania 1964 73:

Socialist Development and Public Investment in Tanzania, 1964-73 W. Edmund Clark, 1978-12-15 With its emphasis on rural development as opposed to urban development Tanzania has pursued an individual path in socialist development This work is the first empirical analysis of public investment in matters of agriculture education rural health manufacturing and commerce comparing the actual program of investment to the strategy outlined in the Arusha Declaration of 1967 In Socialist Development and Public Investment in Tanzania 1964 1976 Dr Clark finds that Tanzania has been more successful in reorienting its program of social investment than its program of economic development This failure stems from real differences within Tanzania and among socialists generally about appropriate investment strategies for a country at Tanzania's stage of development In fact no clear specification of an economic strategy exists and as a result policy has been heavily determined by the interests of the dominant political groups It also reflects the fact that in its initial stages Tanzanian socialism was not a mass movement It was imposed from the top and consequently the bureaucracy remains relatively immune from the pressures of the people and the poverty in which they live Dr Clark argues that Nyerere's basic strategy is appropriate to Tanzania at a stage when it lacks the resources to pursue the traditional socialist goal of an integrated industrial economy but that the implementation of this strategy should and must be improved Skillfully blending political and social with economic analysis he provides a provocative interpretation of socialist investment strategy in Tanzania and provides an illuminating perspective on the economics of developing countries Routledge Library Editions:

International Relations Various, 2021-08-05 The 10 volumes in this set originally published between 1959 and 1986 analyze the process of radical foreign policy change explore Marxist Leninist models of international relations describe the significance of cultural relations in international affairs highlight the changing nature of political communities and changing patterns of government and examine the interaction between the realms of ethics and international relations Why

Nations Realign Kal Holsti, 2015-10-14 This book originally published in 1982 analyzes the process of radical foreign policy change how states restructure their foreign relations and why they do so Using a common analytical framework the authors examine Bhutan Burma Canada China and Tanzania They distinguish between piecemeal foreign policy change and adaptation and the fundamental re ordering of foreign policy Their analysis underlines the extent to which non military and sometimes imagined threats such as dependency and external economic and cultural penetration can constitute an important cause of radical realignment activity Socialist and Self-Reliance In Tanzania Kimse A.B. Okoko, 2024-11-01 This study developed from a keen interest in the politics of contemporary Africa especially in regard to the seemingly intractable problem of political dependence with its economic correlate of underdevelopment The most interesting contemporary work on African political economy explores the link between economic underdevelopment and political dependence Development and independence are seen as moving in the same direction in the long run even if in the short run there appear to be inherent contradictions in their immediate needs in a concrete situation The focus of this work emphasizes the internal contradictions such as exist between the bureaucracy and the political leadership within Tanzania rather than the external linkages

The Growth Of The Manufacturing Industry In Tanzania M. S. Silver, M S Silver, 2019-07-11 Tracing the evolution of the Tanzanian manufacturing industry since the beginning of colonial rule this book focuses on the period since independence and especially on the effects of socialist policies resulting from the 1967 Arusha Declaration Dr Silver develops volume indices of production for Tanzanian industry as a whole and for individual sectors He also examines in detail changes in labor productivity earnings unit labor costs investments and the prices of manufactured goods paying special attention to the role of government controlled parastatals the regional distribution of manufacturing industries and income inequality The rapid growth in production and employment and the changing structure of the manufacturing industry he concludes is due to high rates of investment in a small number of relatively large establishments primarily in the parastatal sector

Tanzania Andrew Coulson, 2013-07-25 Tanzania in the 1970s was at the forefront of policy innovation Near universal primary education access to health services and supplies of clean water subsequently became mainstream ambitions in Africa and elsewhere But its policies towards agricultural and industrial production failed and left the country in a particularly weak position when it faced the demands of structural adjustment in the 1980s This book originally published in 1982 has been reissued with a new introduction which brings its themes up to the present when income from gold mining and natural gas is making Tanzania one of the most dynamic economies in Africa today The author first an economic civil servant in Tanzania later an academic at the University of Dar es Salaam was in a unique position to write it drawing on his own experiences as well as the plethora of ideas and debates in Dar es Salaam in the 1970s The book has stood the test of time not only because of the range of material it covers but more profoundly because of the approach it takes to the work of Tanzania's founding president Julius Nyerere sympathetic to his ideas deeply critical of failures in implementation 25 short easily read chapters take the story of Tanzania from pre colonial times to the present and show how Nyerere was hemmed in by what he inherited from the German and British colonialists who ran the country up to Independence in 1961 It provides an invaluable introduction to anyone coming to the country for the first time and offers a profound assessment of the theoretical debates that have made Tanzania of such interest to students of development

Alternative Futures For Africa Timothy M. Shaw, 2019-03-01 This comprehensive critical examination of Africa's future written by a diverse group of Africans and Africanists raises many questions and challenges concerning the development and unity of the African continent Eclectic in range and method but cohesive in concern the book identifies and analyzes alternative probabilities in the political economic and social spheres and on the national regional and international levels Many of the contributors point toward an unpromising future for Africa unless its development strategy is changed and its inheritance of dependence on the world system overcome

Black Africa 1945-1980 D K Fieldhouse, 2012-08-21 In what ways did economic considerations affect the decision by Britain and France to make their Black African colonies independent Why were early expectations that independence would lead to rapid and sustained economic development in Africa for the most part disappointed This title originally published in 1986 seeks to tackle these two important and strongly debated issues The main aim and value of the book is to take a broad view of this huge subject pulling together material on most parts of Black Africa south of the Sahara and north of the Limpopo so that the problem can be seen as a whole It takes account of a wide range of possible and actual factors which have influenced African economic development weaving them into a single analysis including the colonial inheritance the impact of the fluctuating international economy policies adopted by African governments and indigenous factors such as climate drought and human resources The book is written to be understood without difficulty by non specialists and is intended to act as an introduction to its subject for university students

The Technological Behaviour of Public Enterprises in Developing Countries Jeffrey James, 2022-08-30 First published in 1989 The Technological Behaviour of Public Enterprises in Developing Countries presents essays based on original research work conducted for the International Labour Office to employ a wide variety of approaches and methodologies to analyse the technological choices made by public enterprises in Tanzania India Argentina and Brazil These empirical studies provide rich and detailed case study material on key issues such as the choice of technology and the acquisition of advanced technological capabilities The significance of the research findings in these areas and their policy implications are described in an introductory chapter and the volume as a whole is accessible and relevant to policy makers and academics who are concerned with industrial development in the developing world

The World Bank and the Globalisation of Housing Finance Liam Clegg, 2017-10-27 The World Bank remains one of the most prominent actors in the field of global development and one of the foremost international organisations in contemporary global politics Over its history its lending for housing has mortgaged development by prioritising financial sector expansion over the needs of low income groups Through this book Liam Clegg explores the drivers of World Bank operational practices and the contribution of these operations to state transformations across the global South
