To meet the duty, public authorities must have due regard to reducing these inequalities of outcome

Inequalities of outcome

Lower healthy life expectancy

Greater chance of living with crime

Poorer skills and attainment

Lower quality, less secure and lower paid work

Less satisfactory housing and neighbourhood

Other inequalities of outcome

But it's sometimes difficult to separate out the inequalities of outcome from the socio-economic disadvantage.

Both can be mutually reinforcing.

So, to have genuine impacts on inequalities of outcome, reducing disadvantage itself (e.g. tackling poverty) needs to be a major focus.

Socioeconomic Disadvantage And Access To Higher Education

Socioeconomic Disadvantage And Access To Higher Education:

Socioeconomic Disadvantage and Access to Higher Education Alasdair Forsyth, Andy Furlong, Joseph Rowntree Foundation, 2000 Socioeconomic disadvantage and access to higher education argues that the gap in representation in higher education between affluent and disadvantaged young people continues. The research looks at reasons for this but takes care to distinguish between the factors which qualify young people for higher education and those which predispose them to attend. That is which factors govern levels of qualification required for entry to higher education and which other factors act as barriers to the progress of disadvantaged young people. Through a survey of school leavers before and after leaving school the report looks at geographical patterns of academic achievement in relation to indicators of disadvantage, the attrition from full time education of qualified but disadvantaged young people, the variety of destinations made by disadvantaged school leavers, patterns and levels of participation in higher and further education, student finance and parental support, barriers to full participation in higher education. The report concludes with policy recommendations for increasing meaningful participation for under represented disadvantaged groups of young people which are applicable throughout the UK. Socioeconomic disadvantage and access to higher education is vital reading for policy makers and academics in the fields of education, young people and social exclusion and anyone interested in higher education and youth transitions. This report should be read alongside Losing Out: Socioeconomic disadvantage and experience in further and higher education. The Policy Press, 2003, also by Alasdair Forsyth and Andy Furlong. Losing Out? Forsyth, Alasdair, Furlong, Andy, 2003-05-16. Despite the expansion of higher education, representation, level of participation and likelihood of academic success remain highest amongst young people from affluent areas and lowest amongst those from deprived neighbourhoods. This report identifies factors which impact upon the minority of disadvantaged young people who enter higher education. Higher Education And Social Justice Furlong, Andy, Cartmel, Fred, 2009-06-01. Higher Education and Social Justice provides essential reading for anyone who has an interest in higher education or a concern for social justice, including lecturers, administrators and policy makers in higher education. Access to Higher Education Anna Mountford-Zimdars, Neil Harrison, 2016-11-18. How do we understand and explain who has access to higher education? How do we make sense of persisting and new forms of inequality? How can global, national and institutional policymakers and practitioners make higher education more inclusive? Access to Higher Education: Theoretical perspectives and contemporary challenges seeks to update thinking on these questions, combining new voices and emerging perspectives with established writers in the field. This pioneering text highlights the contribution of social theory to issues of access to education, with chapters introducing and drawing on the works of key interdisciplinary thinkers including Pierre Bourdieu, Margaret Archer, Amartya Sen and Herbert Simon. It then moves to examine how theoretical perspectives can be applied to the contemporary challenges of forging more equal access, with examples drawn from a wide range of contexts including the UK, the US, Australia, South Africa and Japan. Global in scope.

this book documents the shared nature of the access challenge in a period when higher education is growing rapidly but inequalities continue to be stark It concludes by proposing a new direction for research and a reassertion of the role of the researcher as a social activist for disconnected and disadvantaged groups equipped with the thinking tools needed to move the agenda forward Access to Higher Education is a rigorous text for the global research community with relevance to policymakers practitioners and postgraduate students interested in social justice and social policy It provides those with an academic interest in access and a commitment to enhancing policy with theoretical and practical ideas for moving the access agenda forward in their institutional regional or national contexts Graduates from Disadvantaged Families Andy

Furlong, Fred Cartmel, 2005 This is the last of three reports in a longitudinal study that has followed the journey of a group of young people from less advantaged families through Higher Education and into the labour market This report focuses on the young people's progress from full time study into the graduate labour market Free PDF available at www.jrf.org.uk

Beyond Percentage Plans: The Challenge of Equal Opportunity in Higher Education, 2002 Financing Access and Equity in Higher Education, 2019-02-11 The demand for higher education worldwide is booming Governments want well educated citizens and knowledge workers but are scrambling for funds The capacity of the public sector to provide increased and equitable access to higher education is seriously challenged What are the on the ground realities of developing financial resources and policies to meet the twin goals of equity and access without jeopardizing quality This volume provides in depth reports from selected countries and sub regions Morocco Korea England Uganda Poland Oman East and southern Africa Southeast Asia Brazil and Egypt Each chapter is written by a seasoned educator participating in the Fulbright New Century Scholar program for 2007 2008 Given the near universal constraints of declining resources but increasing enrollments the authors identify common trends such as the public private divide the privatization of the public sector and diversification of funding To address these issues the chapters examine a surprising variety of policy instruments such as means testing targeted subsidies cost sharing institutional aid student bursaries and tax exemptions

Educational Research for Social Justice Alistair Ross, 2021-06-22 This book presents a series of analyses of educational policies largely in the UK but some also in Europe researched by a team of social scientists who share a commitment to social justice and equity in education We explore what social justice means in educational policy and practice and how it impacts on our understanding of both educational science and the public good Using a social constructivist approach the book argues that social justice requires a particular and critical analysis of the meaning of meritocracy and of the way this term turns educational policies towards treating learning as a competition in which many young people are constructed as losers We discuss how many terms in education are essentialised and have specific and different meanings for particular social groups and how this may create issues in both quantitative survey methods and in determining what is the public good We discuss social justice across a range of intersecting social characteristics including social class ethnicity and gender as they are applied across the educational policy spectrum from early years to postgraduate education We examine the ways that young people construct their identities and the implications of this for understanding the public good in educational practice We consider the responsibilities of educational researchers to acknowledge these issues and offer examples of researching with such a commitment We conclude by considering how educational policy might contribute to a socially just equitable and inclusive public good
