New Directions in the Study of Policy Transfer Mark Evans, 2013-10-31 Policy transfer analysis seeks to make sense of the cross cultural transfer of knowledge about institutions policies or delivery systems in an era of globalization The purpose of this volume is to evaluate how useful policy transfer analysis is as a descriptive explanatory and prescriptive theory of policy change It provides both a response to its critics and it presents a variety of new directions for studying processes of policy transfer The chapters proceed from an underlying assumption about the field of enquiry that policy transfer analysis alone cannot provide a general explanatory theory of policy change but when combined with other approaches an empirically grounded account of policy change can be developed Hence each of the chapters adopt a methodological pluralism in which complementary theories of policy development are combined in order to develop a theory of policy change that accounts for the role of particular agents of policy transfer in forging policy change This is an important contribution to our understanding of the impact of globalization on domestic policy formulation This book was previously published as a special issue of Policy Studies

Making Health Policy, 2016-08-29 What shapes health policy Current thinking dictates that scientific evidence should be the basis for policy making in healthcare but is this a new approach and how has it developed Making Health Policy shows how networks in science and the media have established a dialogue for policy making since 1945 Surprisingly many of the networks influencing health policy are not political ones central to public discussion Instead scientific networks have shaped policies on public health based upon findings of chronic disease epidemiology For policies on illicit drugs the clinical experience of a small group of psychiatrists held sway And ironically in an ever cost conscious world high technology areas such as renal dialysis saw economic considerations diminish as time passed Health pressure groups entered the equation and the last half of the twentieth century witnessed the rise of the media as the defining agency in the science policy relationship Making Health Policy is the first historical study to explore the unspoken links between science and recent health policy
