Fraser's Magazine for Town and Country James Anthony Froude, John Tulloch, 1836 Contains the first printing of Sartor resartus as well as other works by Thomas Carlyle The Mental-cure, illustrating the influence of the mind on the body Warren Felt Evans, 1869 Suggestive therapeutics and hypnotism Herbert Arthur Parkyn, 1900 Treatise on the Human Mind (1666) Louis de la Forge, 2013-03-09 Descartes philosophy represented one of the most explicit statements of mind body dualism in the history of philosophy Its most familiar expression is found in the Meditations 1641 and in Part I of The Principles of Philosophy 1644 However neither of these books provided a detailed discussion of dualism The Meditations was primarily concerned with finding a foundation for reliable human knowledge while the Principles attempted to provide an alternative metaphysical framework in contrast with scholastic philosophy within which natural philosophy or a scientific explanation of natural phenomena could be developed Thus neither book explicitly presents a Cartesian theory of the mind nor does either give a detailed account of how if dualism were accepted mind and body would interact The task of articulating such a theory was left to two further works only one of which was completed by Descartes viz the Treatise on Man published posthumously in 1664 The Treatise began with the following sentence describing the hypothetical human beings who were to be explained in that work These human beings will be composed as we are of a soul and a body and first of all I must describe the body for you separately then also separately the soul and finally I must show you how these two natures would have to be joined and united to constitute human beings resembling us Essays on the Intellectual Powers of the Human Mind to which are Added an Essay on Quantity and an Analysis of Aristoteles Logic Thomas Reid, 1827 Sunset, 1916 The Metaphysical Mind and Body A Theological Approach Arch Bishop D.A. Miller, D.D. Ph.D., 2012-02-23 THE INCARNATION OF SPIRIT To return to individuality it is that which distinguishes man from the mere brute creation it is the greater Incarnation of God in the human the Indwelling Spirit of the Most High Man is created and left to discover himself and on the road to this self discovery he experiences the creations of his own imaginations which ultimately show him the Truth and lead to real freedom There is an interesting myth in regard to the creating of man which may serve to point out this fact It is said that when the gods decided to make man and make him a Divine Being they held a long discussion as to where would be the best place to hide his Divinity Some of the gods suggested that it be hidden in the earth but others argued that someday man would penetrate the earth and so discover himself it was then suggested that it be hidden in the depths of the sea but this idea was rejected for man would go under the sea and there discover his true nature
