Hopple,2019-06-10 The interface between psychology and politics has been an area of sustained inquiry for several decades More recently the nexus between psychopolitical factors and international politics linkages among biopolitics political psychology elite analysis foreign affairs and world politics has been explored This volume reviews and assesses the m Propaganda Technique In World War I Harold D. Lasswell,1971-04-15 A classic book on propaganda technique proposes a general theory of the strategy and tactics of propaganda This classic book on propaganda technique focuses on American British French and German experience in World War I The book sets forth a simple classification of various psychological materials used to produce certain specific results and proposes a general theory of strategy and tactics for the manipulation of these materials In an introduction coauthored by Jackson A Giddens written for this edition Harold Lasswell notes that this study was partially an exercise in the discovery of appropriate theory It raised the crucial questions of how to classify the content of propaganda for instance a distinction is made between value demands war aims war guilt and casting the enemy as evil personified and expectations the illusion of victory and how to summarize the procedures employed in organizing and carrying out propaganda operations Propaganda Technique in World War I deals primarily with problems of internal administration and lateral coordination rather than with the relationship between policymakers and propagandists. However, Jackson Giddens enumerates procedures in the book that illustrate an underlying assumption that decision makers were deeply involved in propaganda and influenced by considerations of public opinion. He takes the study of propaganda further by elaborating on the nature and meaning of the category of war aims and its relation to the propagandist for this more than any other category of content is the catalyst of transnational political action. Giddens's exploration of the development of a comprehensive theory of propaganda adds another dimension to Lasswell's study while confirming its value as outstanding groundwork for continuing research.

Comparative Public Policy and Citizen Participation Charles R.

Foster, 2013-10-22 Comparative Public Policy and Citizen Participation Energy, Education, Health, and Urban Issues in the U.S. and Germany focuses on the processes involved in policy formulation and the functions of citizens in such activity. Concerns include education, energy, and environmental policies, decision making, and delivery of human services. The selection first analyzes the policy making procedures in the United States, including participation of the poor in poverty programs, welfare reform, energy legislation, and federal aid to elementary and secondary education. The book then discusses the participation of citizens in decision making processes in energy and environmental policy. The necessity of citizens' participation, failure of political parties, local decision making, and approval procedures for the federal emissions protection act are elaborated. The publication underscores citizens' participation at government expense, including federal experience with intervenor funding, congressional activities, and signs of change in the public sector. The text also takes a look at education as loosely coupled systems in West Germany and the United States, experiences with participation in the continuing education of teachers in West Germany, and participation of citizens in the delivery of human services. The book is a dependable reference for readers interested in the processes involved in policy formulation and the role of citizens in such undertaking.

Comparing Political Communication Frank Esser, Barbara Pfetsch, 2004-09-06 This volume assesses comparative political communication research and considers potential ways in which it could and should develop. Twenty experts from Europe and the United States offer a unique and comprehensive discussion of the theories, cases, and challenges of comparative research in political communication. The first part discusses the fundamental themes, concepts, and methods essential to analyze the effects of modernization and globalization of political communication. The second part offers a broad range of case studies that illustrate the enormous potential of cross-national approaches in many relevant fields of political communication. The third part paves the way for future research by describing the most promising concepts and pressing challenges of comparative political communication. This book is intended to introduce new students to a crucial dynamic field as well as deepening advanced students' knowledge of its principles and perspectives.

Comparative Communication Research Alex S.

Edelstein, 1982-02 Throughout this book, Edelstein stresses why and how comparative communication research should be done. Highlighting major conceptual and methodological approaches, he provides useful summaries of the major comparative studies performed to date and pinpoint promising new directions for research and conceptualization This perceptive look at the state of the art in comparative communications research will serve as a valuable text for courses exploring international communications as well as a serviceable handbook for researchers and specialists in communications cross cultural studies and popular culture and values

Content Analysis of Verbal Behavior Louis A. Gottschalk, Fernando Lolas, Linda L. Viney, 2012-12-06 The psychological states of patients with diabetes mellitus were compared with those of patients suffering from other chronic diseases and people with no diagnosed chronic diseases These states were assessed by applying content analysis scales to transcripts of their descriptions of their current experiences Analyses of the diabetics scale scores revealed a pattern characterized by much anxiety depression anger expressed both directly and indirectly together with feelings of helplessness The sources of anxiety which proved to be of most importance to them were fears of death and bodily mutilation as well as guilt and shame They experienced little sense of sharing with most people around them although they showed considerable enjoyment of close relationships with family and friends This pattern of psychological states did not vary with the sex of the patients or whether they were interviewed in a hospital or at home nor with recency of onset or multiplicity of health problems It was similar to the pattern of patients with other chronic diseases but differed significantly from that of the healthy group Acknowledgment The authors wish to acknowledge the contribution of Carol Preston to the collection and analysis of these data which were made available in part by patients of the Wollongong Hospital and members of the Illawarra Branch of the Diabetic Association of New South Wales References 1 Strong JA Baird JD 1971 Diseases of the endocrine system In Davidson S McLeod J eds The principles and practice of medicine
