Species At Risk Research In Australia:

Species at Risk Research in Australia R.H. Groves, W.D.L. Ride, 1983-02-01 Evolutionary progress has long been associated with the extinction of species So why should we be concerned now even when the number of species at risk is substantial such as one tenth of the Australian flora The reasons for concern are many stranded Compassion is one strand Remember the instructions to Noah And you shall bring living creatures of every kind into the ark and keep them alive with you Guilt may be another strand that our hunting clearing collecting pollution introduction of competitors and other human activities may have endangered species such as the Orange bellied Parrot Nostalgia for what was and concern for what might be also play a part species at risk include some which are of immediate use such as the whales and many of potential use whether drug plants in the forests of the Amazon or a wild relative of the soybean in Victoria Aesthetic considerations are also involved particularly where colourful birds or unusual flowers are threatened We cherish diversity as culturally desirable and are delighted when supposedly extinct species such as the notornis and coelacanth and maybe yet the thylacine are rediscovered The Loch Ness monster has already been blessed with a Latin binomial in anticipation Diversity is also of ecological as well as of cultural value contributing to the stability of ecosystems as in the case of insects and birds which fertilize the flowers and disperse the seeds of plants Australian Mammal Society ,1985 Australia's Mammal Extinctions Chris Johnson, 2006-11-02 Publisher description Limnology in Australia P. de Deckker, W.D. Williams, 2012-12-06 Australia is the world's driest inhabited continent Water is our limiting resource It might therefore be thought that our water resources would be the subject of the most intensive study Certain aspects it must be conceded have received much attention notably the availability of water in terms of actual quantity The size of the surface water and the groundwater resource is well understood and indeed receives about as much study as can reasonably be expected in a country with as sparse a population and level of scientific manpower as ours Although the importance of understanding the water resource in terms of quantity is widely accepted what has not been generally appreciated is that for this resource to be available to human society for all the different uses to which it is put it is not sufficient that there exists within easy reach of the end users a certain total volume of water For that water to fulfil its functions for agriculture industry the home recreation biological conservation it must be in a certain state it must conform to certain chemical physical and biological criteria and what has not been sufficiently appreciated in Australian society is that the condition a water is in depends very much on the ecology of the waterbody in which it resides There are waterbodies in the world for example high altitude glacial lakes which are naturally so pristine that their water could be used for any purpose without treatment Australian Mammal Society ,1994-06 Australian Mammal Society ,1990-06 The Biology and Conservation of Australasian Bats Bradley Law, Peggy Eby, Lindy Lumsden, Daniel Lunney, 2011 This book the Biology and Conservation of Australasian Bats follows from the successful 3 day forum of the same name held in April 2007 at the Australian Museum The forum was organised jointly by the Royal Zoological Society of NSW and the Australasian Bat Society Australian Mammal Society ,1994-06

Biodiversity in Managed Landscapes Robert C. Szaro, David W. Johnston, 1996 The conservation of biodiversity has profound implications for managing natural resources with the need for scientific information as a foundation for management decisions increasing dramatically The_ intent of this book is to look beyond the theory of biodiversity to_ the principles practices and policies needed for its conservation Its objectives are to provide the scientific basis for understanding biodiversity document case examples of theory and concepts applied at differing scales and examine policies that affect its conservation Australian Mammal Society ,1993-08
